Civil Service Reform: H.R. 1836, Homeland Security Act, and Current Law

Summary

On May 8, 2003, the House Government Reform Committee ordered a bill to be reported that would significantly change the system for managing civilian personnel within the Department of Defense (DOD) and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). If passed, H.R. 1836 would also change the compensation system for Senior Executive Service members throughout the government and make other general systemic changes with regard to human resources management.

In April 2003, DOD General Counsel William Haynes sent Congress a significant reform proposal packaged as the “Defense Transformation for the 21st Century Act.” Among the changes proposed would be establishing a chapter within Title 5 of the U.S. Code that would govern personnel management provisions unique to DOD. H.R. 1836 incorporates most of these provisions. Some of the provisions have been included in the House or Senate versions of FY2004 Defense authorizations (H.R. 1588, S. 1050). In particular, H.R. 1588, as passed by the House, incorporates Title I, most of Title II, and Title IV of H.R. 1836, as reported.

Representative Tom Davis, Chairman of the House Committee on Government Reform, introduced H.R. 1836, known as the Civil Service and National Security Personnel Improvement Act. By making changes in selected federal personnel management statutory provisions, the bill is intended to improve the flexibility and competitiveness of federal human resources management. Defense authorization measures S. 297, as introduced, S. 1050, as reported, and H.R. 1588, as passed, echo many of the government-wide provisions of Title II of H.R. 1836. Provisions similar to those affecting NASA and the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) are also in H.R. 1085, S. 610, and H.R. 658. Overall, these proposals would grant agency heads more flexibility with respect to hiring, disciplining, and compensating civilian personnel. Some would argue that the most significant of these changes would relate to compensation. In each case, it is presumed that some form of pay banding would result.

The Homeland Security Act of 2002 (P.L. 107-296, H.R. 5005) provides that the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Director of the Office of Personnel Management will work together to develop a system of personnel management unique to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). It also provides for some government-wide changes in workforce management. The system is under development.

The purpose of this report is to present, in tabular format, the alignment of H.R. 1836 with current statutory provisions and with those sections of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 related to personnel management and unique to the Department of Homeland Security. Since H.R. 1588 incorporates a significant portion of H.R. 1836, where appropriate, attention is called to the differences. If there are no notes, the provisions of H.R. 1836 were passed by the House in H.R. 1588.

Civil Service Reform: H.R. 1836, Homeland Security Act, and Current Law

Introduction

In April 2003, the Department of Defense (DOD) sent Congress a proposal entitled the “Defense Transformation for the 21st Century Act.”¹ The proposal is principally directed to changes in the uniformed military personnel and acquisition systems. However, it also would change the statutory bases for much of the civilian personnel system. Policies related to general employment rules, compensation, and post retirement re-employment would be affected. H.R. 1588 was reported from the House Committee on Armed Services² incorporating most of the transformation proposal provisions.³ As passed by the House on May 22, 2003, H.R. 1588 incorporates, with few changes, Title I, most of Title II, and Title IV of H.R. 1836, as ordered reported. DOD employs approximately 25% of the total federal civilian workforce.⁴

The Homeland Security Act of 2002⁵ provides that the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Director of the Office of Personnel Management will jointly develop a system of personnel management unique to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). It also provides for some government-wide changes in workforce management. The system is under development.⁶ DHS employs approximately 6.3% of the total federal civilian workforce.⁷

Representative Tom Davis, Chairman of the House Committee on Government Reform, has introduced legislation (H.R. 1836) titled “Civil Service and National Security Personnel Improvement Act.” The bill, by making changes in selected federal personnel management statutory provisions, is intended to improve the flexibility and competitiveness of federal human resources management. In addition to the civilian personnel provisions from the DOD proposal, it would make significant changes in the personnel management system at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), with limited amendments to the system at the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). H.R. 1836 was ordered to be reported by the House Government Reform Committee on May 8, 2003.

H.R. 1588, as passed, would incorporate Title I of H.R. 1836 with very few differences. One difference is that at the proposed new 5 U.S.C. 9902(j) in H.R. 1588, Section 1121, would specify that the hiring flexibility authorities the secretary could exercise would be those under 5 U.S.C. 4703(a)(1), (3), and (8). H.R. 1836, as reported, identified the authorities as hiring flexibilities under Chapter 47 as a whole. H.R. 1588, Title XI (Department of Defense Civilian Personnel), Subtitle A (Department of Defense Civilian Personnel Generally), contains two sections that were not part of H.R. 1836, as reported. Those sections related to military leave for mobilized federal civilian employees (Sec. 1102) and common occupational and health standards for differential payments as a consequence of exposure to asbestos (Sec. 1103).

Two sections included in Title II of H.R. 1836, as reported, were not incorporated. Those are H.R. 1836, Section 202, “Civil Service Retirement System computation for part-time service” and H.R. 1836, Section 212, “Nonreduction in pay while Federal employee is serving on active duty in a reserve component of the uniformed services.”

Two proposals entitled “Federal Workforce Flexibility Act of 2003” have also been introduced in the 108th Congress by Senator George Voinovich (S. 129) and Representative JoAnn Davis (H.R. 1601). They contain several of the government-wide provisions of the proposed Federal Workforce Improvement Act of 2002 (S. 2651, 107th Congress) that were not enacted as part of the Homeland Security Act of 2002. These bills would amend current law provisions on personnel management demonstration projects; recruitment, relocation, and retention bonuses; critical pay; civil service retirement system computation for part-time service; pay administration; agency training; and annual leave. Although some provisions correspond to provisions in the newer proposals, for example, part-time service computation for retirement, there has been no effort to incorporate these provisions into this report.⁸

The purpose of this report is to present, in tabular format, the alignment of the provisions of H.R. 1836 with current statutory provisions and with those sections of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 related to personnel management and unique to the Department of Homeland Security. If H.R. 1836 or similar personnel management legislation were enacted, there would be four chapters in Title 5 of the U.S. Code that established personnel provisions and flexibilities unique to specific agencies (the Internal Revenue Service, DHS, NASA, and DOD). Contributors to this report are (name redacted), Jon Shimabukuro, (name redacted), (name redacted), (name redacted), and Sharon Gressle.

The report is keyed off H.R. 1836. The other columns are “Current Law,” which is Title 5 of the U.S. Code, unless otherwise noted, and related personnel provisions unique to DHS under P.L. 107-296. Because H.R. 1588, as passed by the House on May 22, 2003, incorporates significant sections of H.R. 1836, the H.R. 1588 (as passed by the House) sections are denoted in bold where appropriate. The provisions are similar, if not identical. Differences are noted. It is expected this report will be revised in the near future to key off the personnel provisions of Title XI of H.R. 1588. H.R. 1588 is, presumably, the vehicle against which the Senate will work in making amendments.

Although there has been some discussion about incorporating into other bills the provisions of Title III of H.R. 1836 as they relate to the personnel systems in the SEC and NASA, no such bills have been reported to date.

Given the scope of the proposed legislation, the authors and other contributors have, in this first look, set out the basic provisions, hoping to provide the readers with a type of roadmap to the bill. The reader should understand that every effort has been made to be comprehensive in identifying statutes currently in effect which would relate to the proposed changes in policy. However, there may be related statutory provisions that we have not identified.

⁸ For a comparison of the proposals in S. 129 and H.R. 1601, see CRS Report RL31516, Civil Service Reform Proposals: A Side-by-Side Comparison of S. 129 and H.R. 1601 (108th Congress) with Current Law, by (name redacted) and (name redacted).

Personnel Provisions Unique to Proposed Defense Transformation for the 21st Century Act

Although Title I of H.R. 1836, as introduced, contains most of the provisions of Sec. 101 of the proposed Defense Transformation for the 21st Century, there are some personnel-related provisions in the transformation proposal which were included.⁹

Contracting for Personal Services

The transformation proposal would create a new section in Title 5, U.S. Code (proposed 5 U.S.C. 9903) relating to contracting for personal services —

- New 5 U.S.C. 9903(a) — Outside the United States. Funds available to the Department of Defense would be available to contract with individuals for services to be performed outside the United States as determined by the secretary to be necessary and appropriate. These contractors would not be considered employees of the United States government for purposes of any law administered by OPM or under any human resources management system established pursuant to the new Chapter 99 of Title 5. These contracts could be negotiated, their terms prescribed, and the work could be performed where necessary, without regard to statutory provisions that relate to negotiating, making, and performing contracts and performing work in the United States. Current law — See, for example, U.S. Code Title 41, Chapter 6 — Service Contract Labor Standards. Homeland — Sec. 835 of P.L. 107-296 is related in that it addresses the issue of prohibiting contracts with corporate expatriates.
- New 5 U.S.C. 9903(b) - National Security Missions. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, sums made available to DOD by appropriation or otherwise could be expended as determined by the secretary to be necessary to carry out the national security mission of DOD for personal services contracts, including personal service without regard to limitations on types of persons to be employed. Current law — See, for example, 10 U.S.C. 2393 - Prohibition against doing business with certain offerors or contractors, 10 U.S.C. 2408 - Prohibition on persons convicted of defense contract related felonies and related criminal penalty on defense contractors, and 50 U.S.C. 403j - Central Intelligence Agency; appropriations; expenditures. See also 50 U.S.C. 403j - Central Intelligence Agency; appropriations; expenditures, which authorizes sums made available to the CIA by appropriation or otherwise to be expended, among other things, for personal services, including personal services without regard to limitations on types of persons to be employed. Homeland — There are no similar provisions.

- New 5 U.S.C. 9903(c) - Experts and Consultants. - Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3) and notwithstanding provisions of 10 U.S.C. 129b, the secretary would be authorized to (A) procure by contract the services of experts and consultants (or organizations of them), who may provide such services with or without compensation as determined by the secretary, and may perform such duties as the secretary may prescribe without being deemed to be employees of DOD except, at the discretion of the secretary, for the purposes of (i) the Ethics in Government Act of 1978; (ii) Chapter 73 of Title 5 (Suitability, Security, and Conduct); and (iii) section 27 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act; and (B) pay travel expenses of individuals, including transportation and per diem in lieu of subsistence while such individuals travel from their homes or places of business to official duty stations and return, as may be authorized by law. (2) To procure the services of experts or consultants (or an organization of them), the secretary would be required to determine that (A) such procurement is advantageous to the United States; and (B) these services cannot be provided adequately by DOD; (3) [Note: The text on which this report is based did not have a subsection (3) of 9903(c), only subsections (1) and (2).] Current law — 5 U.S.C. 3109 - Employment of experts and consultants generally limits temporary contract services to one year and pay for temporary and intermittent contract services to the daily equivalent rate of pay to the highest allowed in 5 U.S.C. 5332 (the General Schedule). 10 U.S.C. 129b - Experts and Consultants; authority to procure such services generally provides that authority should be exercised in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 3109. Homeland — Sec. 831(c) of P.L. 107-296 - Procurement of Temporary and Intermittent Services (in research and development projects) authorizes procurement of temporary and intermittent services of experts and consultants in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 3109, without regard to pay limitation in section 3109. Sec. 832 - Personal services. Authorizes procurement of temporary or intermittent services of experts or consultants in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 3109, but, when necessary to meet an urgent homeland security needs, without regard to the pay limitations in section 3109.
- New 5 U.S.C. 9903(d) - Implementation. Implementation of this section would be at the secretary's sole, exclusive, and unreviewable discretion. There are no similar provisions in law.

Contracting for Security Guards and Firefighting Services

Title II of the DOD transformation proposal would relate to acquisition policy. Subtitle B would affect the contracting process. Specifically, Sec. 211, Contracting of security guards and firefighting services, would repeal the provisions of 10 U.S.C. 2465. Currently, 10 U.S.C. 2465 places a prohibition on contracts for performance of firefighting or security-guard functions and generally denies obligation or expenditure of DOD appropriated funds for firefighting and security guard functions at any military installation or facility. There were no similar provisions in the Homeland Security Act of 2002.

Administrative Transformation

The DOD transformation proposal contains some provisions which are directed to the issue of organization within the department and administrative management. However, as the comparison below shows, the proposal could have significant effects on personnel management policy.
