Summary

The Department of Justice (DOJ) was established in 1870 with the Attorney General as its leader. Since its creation, DOJ has added additional agencies, offices, boards, and divisions to its organizational structure. DOJ, along with the judicial branch, operates the federal criminal justice system. The department enforces federal criminal and civil laws, including antitrust, civil rights, environmental, and tax laws. Through agencies such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA); and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (ATF), it investigates terrorism, organized and violent crime, illegal drugs, and gun and explosives violations, among others. Through the U.S. Marshals Service (USMS), it protects the federal judiciary, apprehends fugitives, and oversees the detention of alleged offenders who are not granted pretrial release. DOJ prosecutes individuals accused of violating federal laws, and it represents the U.S. government in court. DOJ's Bureau of Prisons (BOP) houses individuals accused or convicted of federal crimes. In addition to its role in administering the federal criminal justice system, the department also provides grants and training to state, local, and tribal law enforcement agencies and judicial and correctional systems.

The Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2017 (P.L. 115-31) appropriated $28.962 billion for DOJ. The act provided $2.713 billion for the U.S. Marshals, $9.006 billion for the FBI, $2.103 billion for the DEA, $1.259 billion for the ATF, and $7.142 billion for the BOP. The remaining funding (approximately $6.739 billion) was for DOJ's other offices, such as the U.S. Attorneys offices, the Executive Office for Immigration Review, and the Attorney General's office.

The Trump Administration requests $28.205 billion for DOJ for FY2018. This amount is 2.6% less than the FY2017-enacted appropriation. The Administration proposes reductions for several DOJ accounts, including a $232 million (-2.6%) reduction for the FBI, a $340 million (-26.6%) reduction for State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance, and a $21 million (-8.3%) reduction for Juvenile Justice Programs. While the Administration's FY2018 budget request includes several reductions for DOJ accounts, it also includes several increases, including an additional $22 million (1.1%) for the Office of the United States Attorneys, an $82 million (5.6%) increase for the USMS's Federal Prisoner Detention account, a $76 million (1.1%) increase for BOP's Salaries and Expenses account, and a $61 million (2.9%) increase for the DEA.

The House committee-reported bill (H.R. 3267) includes $29.315 billion for DOJ, which is 1.2% greater than the FY2017-enacted appropriation and 3.5% greater than the Administration's request. The committee would provide increases for the USMS (+3.2%), DEA (+2.9%), ATF (+2.8%), BOP (+0.4%), and the Office of the U.S. Attorneys (+1.1%). The committee-reported bill would reduce funding for the FBI (-1.6%), but this is due to a proposed cut in funding for the FBI's Construction account.

The Senate committee-reported bill (S. 1662) includes $29.068 billion for DOJ, which is 0.4% greater than the FY2017-enacted appropriation and 2.6% greater than the Administration's request. The committee-reported bill includes increases for the USMS (+4.0%), DEA (+0.6%), ATF (+1.2%), and the Office of the U.S. Attorneys (+1.1%). The committee recommends reduced funding for the FBI (-0.2%), but this is due to a proposed reduction in the FBI's Construction account. The committee would essentially flat-fund BOP (the recommended increase is less than 0.1%).

The mission of the Department of Justice (DOJ) is to “enforce the law and defend the interests of the United States according to the law; to ensure public safety against threats foreign and domestic; to provide federal leadership in preventing and controlling crime; to seek just punishment for those guilty of unlawful behavior; and to ensure fair and impartial administration of justice for all Americans.”¹

DOJ was established in 1870 with the Attorney General as its leader. Since its creation, DOJ has added additional agencies, components, offices, boards, and divisions to its organizational structure. DOJ, along with the judicial branch, operates the federal criminal justice system. The department enforces federal criminal and civil laws, including antitrust, civil rights, environmental, and tax laws. Through agencies such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA); and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (ATF), it investigates terrorism, organized and violent crime, illegal drugs, and gun and explosives violations, among others. Through the U.S. Marshals Service (USMS), it protects the federal judiciary, apprehends fugitives, and detains alleged offenders who are not granted pretrial release. DOJ investigates and prosecutes individuals accused of violating federal laws, and it represents the U.S. government in court. DOJ’s Bureau of Prisons (BOP) houses individuals accused and convicted of federal crimes. In addition to its role in administering the federal criminal justice system, the department also provides grants and training to state, local, and tribal law enforcement agencies and judicial and correctional systems.

Overview of DOJ’s Accounts

Congress appropriates funding for each of DOJ’s accounts as a part of the annual Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies (CJS) appropriations legislation.²

General Administration

Accounts under the General Administration heading provide funds for salaries and expenses for the Attorney General’s office, the Inspector General’s office, and other programs designed to ensure that the efforts of DOJ agencies, offices, boards, and divisions are coordinated.

Salaries and Expenses

The Salaries and Expenses account supports the Attorney General and senior DOJ leadership as they manage DOJ’s resources and formulate policies for legal, law enforcement, and criminal justice activities.

Justice Information Sharing Technology

The Justice Information Sharing Technology account provides funding for DOJ’s information technology programs.

² For more information on CJS appropriations, see CRS Report R44877, Overview of FY2018 Appropriations for Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies (CJS), by (name redacted)

Executive Office for Immigration Review

In FY2017, Congress changed the title of the Administrative Review and Appeals account to the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR) account. Funding for the Pardon Attorney, which was previously part of the Administrative Review and Appeals account, was moved to the General Legal Activities account.

The EOIR is responsible for the review and adjudication of immigration cases, in coordination with the Department of Homeland Security (DHS).

Office of the Inspector General (OIG)

The OIG account supports efforts to detect and deter waste, fraud, and abuse involving DOJ programs and personnel; promote economy and efficiency in DOJ operations; and investigate allegations of departmental misconduct.

U.S. Parole Commission

The U.S. Parole Commission account supports the commission's mission to adjudicate parole requests for prisoners who are serving felony sentences for federal and District of Columbia code violations. The commission also sets the conditions of release for offenders under its jurisdiction and makes determinations about whether to return parolees who have violated the terms of their release to prison.

Legal Activities

The Legal Activities account includes several subaccounts: General Legal Activities, U.S. Attorneys, the Antitrust Division, the Vaccine Injury Compensation Trust Fund, the U.S. Trustee System Fund, the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, Fees and Expenses of Witnesses, and the Community Relations Service.

These subaccounts support a wide array of activities. For example, the General Legal Activities subaccount funds the Office of the Solicitor General to supervise and conduct government litigation in proceedings before the Supreme Court. It also funds several departmental divisions (tax, criminal, civil, environment and natural resources, legal counsel, civil rights, INTERPOL,³ and dispute resolution).

Via this account, Congress also establishes a limit on how much can be spent from the Assets Forfeiture Fund to cover certain authorized expenses.

U.S. Marshals Service (USMS)

The USMS account supports the protection of the federal judicial process, including protecting judges, attorneys, witnesses, and jurors. In addition, the USMS provides physical security in courthouses, transports prisoners to and from court proceedings, apprehends fugitives, executes warrants and court orders, oversees the detention of alleged offenders pretrial, and seizes forfeited property.⁴

³ "INTERPOL" is a contraction of "international police." The organization's official name is ICPO—INTERPOL, and "ICPO" stands for "International Criminal Police Organization."

National Security Division (NSD)

The NSD account supports the coordination of DOJ's national security and terrorism missions. The NSD was established in DOJ in response to the recommendations of the Commission on the Intelligence Capabilities of the United States Regarding Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD Commission), and authorized by Congress in the USA PATRIOT Improvement and Reauthorization Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-177, enacted March 9, 2006). Under the NSD, the Office of Intelligence Policy and Review and the Criminal Division's Counterterrorism and Counterespionage Sections' resources were consolidated to coordinate the department's intelligence-related resources and to ensure that criminal intelligence information is shared, as appropriate.

Interagency Law Enforcement

The Interagency Law Enforcement account reimburses DOJ agencies for their participation in the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force (OCDETF) program. Organized into 12 task forces, this program combines the expertise of federal agencies with those of state and local law enforcement to disrupt and dismantle major narcotics trafficking and money laundering organizations. The DOJ agencies, divisions, and offices that participate in OCDETF are the DEA, FBI, ATF, USMS, the Tax and Criminal Divisions of DOJ, and U.S. Attorneys. Other agencies participating in OCDETF are U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, the U.S. Coast Guard, the Treasury Office of Enforcement, and the Internal Revenue Service.

Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI)

The FBI account supports the lead federal investigative agency charged with defending the country against foreign terrorist and intelligence threats; enforcing federal laws; and providing leadership and criminal justice services to federal, state, municipal, tribal, and territorial law enforcement agencies and partners. Since the September 11, 2001 (9/11), terrorist attacks, the FBI has reorganized and reprioritized its efforts to focus on preventing terrorism and related criminal activities.

Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA)

The DEA account supports the only single-mission federal agency tasked with enforcing the nation's controlled substance laws, reducing the availability and abuse of illicit drugs, and preventing the diversion of licit drugs for illicit purposes. The DEA's enforcement efforts include the disruption and dismantling of drug trafficking and money laundering organizations through drug interdiction and seizures of illicit revenues and assets derived from these organizations. The agency plays a key role in federal efforts to counter drug-related violence by focusing on the convergent threats of illegal drugs, drug-related violence, and terrorism. The DEA also has an active role in the Prescription Drug Abuse Prevention Plan through the targeting of improper prescribing practices and promoting proper disposal of unused prescription drugs.

for the Office of the Federal Detention Trustee account and instead provided funding for a Federal Prisoner Detention account under the USMS. Funding under this account covers the costs associated with the care of federal detainees.

Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (ATF)

The ATF enforces federal criminal law related to the manufacture, importation, and distribution of alcohol, tobacco, firearms, and explosives. The ATF works independently and through partnerships with industry groups; international, state, and local governments; and other federal agencies to investigate and reduce crime involving firearms and explosives, acts of arson, and illegal trafficking of alcohol and tobacco products.

Federal Prison System (Bureau of Prisons, BOP)

BOP was established in 1930, and its account supports the housing of federal inmates, professionalization of the prison service, and the consistent and centralized administration of the federal prison system. The mission of the BOP is to protect society by confining offenders in prisons and community-based facilities that are safe, humane, cost-efficient, and appropriately secure, and to provide work and other self-improvement opportunities for inmates so that they can become productive citizens after they are released. The BOP currently operates 122 correctional facilities across the country.⁵ It also contracts with Residential Re-entry Centers (RRCs, i.e., halfway houses) to provide assistance to inmates nearing release. RRCs provide inmates with a structured and supervised environment along with employment counseling, job placement services, financial management assistance, and other programs and services.

Office on Violence Against Women (OVW)

OVW was established to administer programs created under the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (VAWA) and subsequent legislation. The OVW account and the programs it supports provide financial and technical assistance to communities around the country to facilitate the creation of local programs, policies, and practices designed to improve the criminal justice response to domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

Office of Justice Programs (OJP)

OJP manages and coordinates the National Institute of Justice; Bureau of Justice Statistics; Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention; Office for Victims of Crime; Bureau of Justice Assistance; the Office of Sex Offender Sentencing, Monitoring, Apprehending, Registering, and Tracking; and related grant programs.

Research, Evaluation, and Statistics

The Research, Evaluation, and Statistics account (formerly the Justice Assistance account) funds the operations of the Bureau of Justice Statistics and the National Institute of Justice, among other related activities.

State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance

The State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance account includes funding for a variety of grant programs to improve the functioning of state, local, and tribal criminal justice systems. Some examples of programs that have traditionally been funded under this account include the Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) program, the Drug Courts program, the State Criminal Alien Assistance Program (SCAAP), and DNA backlog reduction program.

Juvenile Justice Programs

The Juvenile Justice Programs account includes funding for grant programs administered by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention to reduce juvenile delinquency and help state, local, and tribal governments improve the functioning of their juvenile justice systems.

Public Safety Officers Benefits Program (PSOB)

The Public Safety Officers Benefits (PSOB) program account provides three different types of benefits to public safety officers and their survivors: death, disability, and education. The PSOB program is intended to assist in the recruitment and retention of law enforcement officers, firefighters, and first responders.

Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS)

The COPS account supports the awarding of grants to state, local, and tribal law enforcement agencies throughout the United States to hire and train law enforcement officers to participate in community policing, purchase and deploy new crime-fighting technologies, and develop and test new and innovative policing strategies.

The Crime Victims Fund (CVF)

The CVF was established by the Victims of Crime Act of 1984 (P.L. 98-473, VOCA). It is administered by the Office for Victims of Crime (OVC) and provides funding to the states and territories for victim compensation and assistance programs. This account does not receive appropriations but instead is funded by criminal fines, forfeited bail bonds, penalties, and special assessments that are collected by U.S. Attorneys' Offices, U.S. courts, and the BOP.⁶

FY2017 Appropriations

The Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2017 (P.L. 115-31) provided a total of $28.962 billion for DOJ. The act provided $2.713 billion for the U.S. Marshals, $9.006 billion for the FBI, $2.103 billion for the DEA, $1.259 billion for the ATF, and $7.142 billion for the BOP. The remaining funding (approximately $6.739 billion) was for DOJ's other offices—such as the U.S. Attorneys offices, the Executive Office for Immigration Review, and the Attorney General's office—and to support the other functions noted above.

For FY2017, Congress supplemented appropriated funding for OVW with a transfer from the CVF. A total of $481.5 million in new budget authority is available for OVW, but $326 million comes via a transfer from the CVF.

FY2018 Administration's Request

The Trump Administration requests $28.205 billion for DOJ for FY2018. The requested amount is 2.6% less than the FY2017-enacted appropriation. The Administration proposes reductions for several DOJ accounts. This includes a $232 million (2.6%) reduction for the FBI, which is largely the result of a $187 million (78.3%) reduction in the Construction account, but also includes a $44 million (0.5%) reduction in the FBI's Salaries and Expenses account. The Administration also proposes reductions for the following:

- State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance (-$340 million, 26.6%),⁷
- Juvenile Justice Programs (-$21 million, 8.3%),⁸ and
- Community Oriented Policing Services (-$4 million, 1.5%).

Consistent with actions taken by Congress for FY2017, the Trump Administration's FY2018 budget request proposes transferring $445 million from the CVF to OVW to supplement the direct appropriations. However, the Administration's budget also proposes transferring $73 million from the CVF to the State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance account and $92 million from the CVF to the Juvenile Justice Programs account.

While the Administration's FY2018 budget request includes several reductions for DOJ, it also includes several proposed increases:

- The Offices of the United States Attorneys (+$22 million, 1.1%),
- The U.S. Marshals Service's Federal Prisoner Detention account (+$82 million, 5.6%),
- The National Security Division (+$5 million, 5.2%),
- Interagency Law Enforcement (+$9 million, 1.7%),
- The Bureau of Prisons' Salaries and Expenses account (+$76 million, 1.1%),
- The Drug Enforcement Administration (+$61 million, 2.9%),
- The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (+$15 million, 1.2%), and
- The Executive Office for Immigration Review (+$60 million, 13.9%).

The Trump Administration proposes eliminating 11,523 positions and 3,587 full-time equivalents (FTEs)⁹ across DOJ. The reductions are a part of a "workforce rightsizing initiative" ordered by Attorney General Sessions. The reductions would come through attrition and "administrative savings" (-2,125 positions and -2,084 FTEs) and through eliminating funded but unfilled positions and FTEs (-9,398 positions and -1,503 FTEs). The majority of eliminated positions and FTEs would come from the FBI (-2,095 positions and -1,843 FTEs), DEA (-1,350 positions and ⁷ The proposed reduction in funding state and local law enforcement assistance takes into account the Administration's proposal to transfer $73 million from the Crime Victims Fund to the State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance account.

⁸ The proposed reduction in funding juvenile justice programs takes into account the Administration's proposal to transfer $92 million from the Crime Victims Fund to the Juvenile Justice Programs account.

⁹ An FTE represents one person working full time for one year. An FTE can represent one position, assuming that the person in that position worked full time for a full year. An FTE can also account for multiple positions (e.g., two people working half time for a full year). In addition, a position might not account for a full FTE, such as when someone is hired to work full time but is hired halfway through the fiscal year.

no FTEs), USMS (-612 positions and -94 FTEs), BOP (-6,132 positions and -846 FTEs), and General Legal Activities (-587 positions and -129 FTEs). These reductions would establish a new baseline for DOJ's current services.¹⁰

The House Committee-Reported Bill (H.R. 3267)

The bill reported by the House Committee on Appropriations would provide $29.315 billion for DOJ, 3.5% more than the Administration's request and 1.2% more than the FY2017-enacted appropriation. Compared to the FY2017-enacted appropriation, the House committee-reported bill includes an $88 million (3.2%) increase for the USMS, a $61 million (2.9%) increase for the DEA, and a $36 million (2.8%) increase for the ATF. There are also increases for the Offices of the U.S. Attorneys ($22 million, 1.1%) and BOP ($26 million, 0.4%). The committee-reported bill reduces funding for the FBI by $139 million (-1.6%), but this is due to a $187 million (-78.3%) reduction in the FBI's Construction account. The report to accompany H.R. 3267 was silent as to whether the committee adopted the Administration's proposal to reduce DOJ's FTEs and positions.

The House Committee on Appropriations declined to accept the Administration's proposal to supplement direct appropriations for the Office on Violence Against Women, State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance, and Juvenile Justice Programs accounts with transfers from the Crime Victims Fund.

The Senate Committee-Reported Bill (S. 1662)

The bill reported by the Senate Committee on Appropriations would provide $29.068 billion for DOJ, 2.6% more than the Administration's request and 0.4% more than the FY2017-enacted appropriation.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations would fund most DOJ accounts at or above the FY2017-enacted level. The committee-reported bill includes a $108 million (4.0%) increase for the USMS, a $13 million (0.6%) increase for the DEA, a $15 million (1.2%) increase for the ATF, and a $22 million (1.1%) increase for the Offices of the U.S. Attorneys. A few notable reductions are for the FBI (-$19 million, 0.2%), though this is the result of an $84 million reduction in the FBI's Construction account, and the State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance account (-$109 million, -8.6%). The report to accompany S. 1662 was silent as to whether the committee adopted the Administration's proposal to reduce DOJ's FTEs and positions.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations largely declined to adopt the Administration's proposal to supplement funding for several grant accounts with transfers from the Crime Victims Fund. However, the committee-reported bill includes a transfer of $379 million from the Crime Victims Fund to the Office on Violence Against Women.

Table 1 summarizes and compares the FY2017 appropriations, the President's FY2018 budget request, and the House and Senate committee-reported amounts for DOJ.

¹⁰ "Current services" reflects the appropriation an agency would need to continue to provide the same level of service in the upcoming fiscal year as it does in the current fiscal year. Current services reflects the previous fiscal year's appropriation plus any base adjustments, which can include increases (e.g., inflationary costs) or reductions (e.g., removal of one-time costs). The current fiscal year budget request reflects current services plus any program increases (e.g., requests for additional personnel) or minus any program offsets (e.g., rescissions of prior fiscal year unobligated balances).

Select Legislative Proposals

The Administration's annual budget submission to Congress is a reflection of its priorities. The Trump Administration has identified national security, combating violent crime, combating opioids, combating transnational organized crime, and enforcing immigration laws as priorities for DOJ. These priorities coincide with issues that President Trump raised during the 2016 presidential campaign and the first few months of his Administration, including concerns about "lone wolf" terrorist attacks inspired by foreign terrorist organizations like the Islamic State, increasing violent crime in some U.S. cities, and the need for more stringent enforcement of the nation's immigration laws.

The Administration formulated its FY2018 budget request using the FY2017 annualized appropriation under the continuing resolutions (P.L. 114-223 and P.L. 114-254). This means that requested program increases were considered relative to the FY2017 annualized appropriation and not the FY2017-enacted appropriation (P.L. 115-31).

National Security

The Administration requests $98 million in program increases for national security efforts at the FBI. Within the $98 million requested by the Administration, $41 million is for the FBI's efforts to combat cyber threats, $22 million is for combatting the threat of "going dark" (i.e., the inability of law enforcement to access certain data due to advancements in technology),¹¹ $20 million is for addressing threats posed by foreign intelligence and domestic bad actors, $8 million is for additional surveillance of FBI high-priority targets, and $7 million is for the operation and maintenance of the FBI's Biometrics Technology Center.

In the report to accompany H.R. 3267, the House Committee on Appropriations notes that it provides $48 million more than the FY2017-enacted appropriation for the FBI. The committee reports that the increase is necessary to help the FBI carry out its critical missions, which include supporting work on "confronting threats from foreign intelligence and insiders," and "helping the FBI stop computer intrusions, investigate cybercrime, and improve cybersecurity."¹² The committee also states that funding for the FBI supports the programs of the FBI's Criminal Justice Information Services Division, including the Biometrics Technology Center. However, the committee did not state if it chose to fund any of the specific program increases requested by the Administration.

The Senate Committee on Appropriation notes in its report that within the funding provided for the FBI, the committee supports the requested program increases for cybersecurity activities. The committee's report is silent as to whether it supported any of the other program increases requested by the Administration.

Combating Violent Crime

The Trump Administration requests approximately $139 million for efforts to reduce violent crime, including the following:

- $19 million to implement the recommendations of the Task Force on Crime Reduction and Public Safety.¹³ Of this amount, $4 million would be for the ATF, $6 million would be for the DEA, $4 million would be for the FBI, and $6 million would be for the USMS.
- $19 million for additional Assistant U.S. Attorneys to help prosecute violent crimes.
- $7 million for the ATF's National Integrated Ballistic Information Network (NIBIN), which allows for the capture and comparison of ballistic evidence to aid in solving violent crimes involving firearms.
- $4 million for the ATF to support advancements in technology for more accurate and timely firearm registrations.
- $9 million for the FBI to support additional personnel to conduct background checks submitted through the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS).
- $70 million for the Project Safe Neighborhoods grant program under the State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance account.
- $12 million for the USMS to replace body armor, radios, fleet vehicles, light armored vehicles, and electronic surveillance equipment, and to support the U.S. Marshal's Special Operations Group's¹⁴ annual selection, specialty and mandatory recertification training, and related equipment.

The House Committee on Appropriations' report notes that it fully funds the requested increase for the ATF's NIBIN program and additional safety equipment for deputy U.S. Marshals. The committee also states that it provides funding for additional resources at the Office of the U.S. Attorneys for additional prosecutors to target violent crime and gang activity. The committee declined to provide $70 million for Project Safe Neighborhoods (the committee recommends $10 million). As mentioned above, the committee states that funding for the FBI supports the programs of the FBI's Criminal Justice Information Services Division, which includes NICS, but the committee did not state whether it provided funding for the program increases requested by the Administration. The committee's report was silent as to whether it provided funding for the other programs increases requested by the Administration.

¹³ The task force was formed by Attorney General Sessions in response to Executive Order 13776 (Task Force on Crime Reduction and Public Safety).

The report to accompany S. 1662 is largely silent as to whether the Senate Committee on Appropriations provided funding for the program increases requested by the Administration. For example, the committee states that its recommended funding supports the ATF's efforts to enforce firearms laws and perform regulatory oversight, including through the NIBIN program, but the report does not state whether the committee funded the Administration's requested program increases for the ATF. The Senate Committee on Appropriations does note that it fully funds the request for the FBI's Criminal Justice Information Services, including continued improvements to NICS. On the other hand, the committee declined to provide $70 million for Project Safe Neighborhoods (the committee recommends $7 million).

Combating Opioids

The Trump Administration requests approximately $40 million to combat opioid abuse, including the following:

- $20 million for the DEA to target drug trafficking; support education and training efforts for pharmaceutical drug manufacturers, wholesalers, pharmacies, and practitioners; and support prescription drug take-back events.
- $9 million for the DEA's efforts to fight organizations engaging in the manufacture and distribution of pharmaceutical controlled substances in violation of the Controlled Substances Act.
- $9 million for heroin enforcement groups at the DEA.
- $3 million for the U.S. Attorneys to support a pilot program for Special Assistant United States Attorneys in "hot spots" around the country to provide additional prosecutorial support to federal criminal and civil drug diversion investigations. Funding for this program would be derived from the DEA's Diversion Control Fee Account.¹⁵

The House Committee on Appropriations states in its report that it provides $15 million under the DEA's Salaries and Expenses account for enhancement of heroin enforcement activities and investigations of transnational organized crime drug criminals. The committee also provides $37 million under the DEA's Diversion Control Program for additional diversion investigators and tactical diversion squads, increasing drug take-back efforts, and increasing enforcement and analysis of new synthetic substances. Within this amount, $10 million is for the proposed U.S. Attorneys' "hot spots" pilot program.

The report from the Senate Committee on Appropriations is largely silent as to whether the committee provided any of the program increases requested by the Administration to help combat opioid abuse. However, the committee notes that while it strongly supports efforts to fight heroin and illegal opioid abuse, it does not approve of funding from the DEA's Diversion Control Program being used for the proposed "hot spots" pilot program. The committee believes that the responsibilities of the pilot program are outside of the DEA's mission and that prosecution for over-prescription and illegal diversion of opioids should be handled by the Office of the U.S. Attorneys. In its report, the committee directs DOJ to use no less than $2.5 million of the funding provided for the Office of the U.S. Attorneys to conduct criminal and civil prosecutions into the illegal prescribing and dispensing of opioids.

Targeting Transnational Organized Crime

The Trump Administration requests approximately $19 million to target transnational organized crime (TOC), including the following:

- $6 million in additional OCDETF funding to support investigations and prosecutions that target high-priority TOC, OCDETF's heroin response strategy, and short-term deployment of federal law enforcement personnel to address violent crime.
- $7 million for the FBI to support ongoing investigations of TOC.
- $7 million for the DEA to investigate TOC entities responsible for trafficking large quantities of drugs into the country.

The House Committee on Appropriations states in its report that it provides $15 million under the DEA's Salaries and Expenses account for enhancement of heroin enforcement activities and investigations of transnational organized crime drug criminals. The committee also reports that funds are included under OCDETF to support interagency task forces that target high-level drug trafficking organizations through coordinated, multijurisdictional investigations.

The report from the Senate Committee on Appropriations is silent as to whether the committee provided funding for any of the program increases requested by the Administration.

Enforcing Immigration Laws

For FY2018, the Trump Administration requests an additional $145 million for enforcing immigration laws, including the following:

- $75 million for additional EOIR immigration judges and support staff.
- $9 million for additional Deputy U.S. Marshals to provide court security and timely detainee processing.
- $50 million for additional housing, medical, and transportation costs for the USMS due to an increased detainee population resulting from expanded immigration law enforcement.
- $7 million for additional Assistant U.S. Attorneys to help prosecute offenses that are a result of expanded immigration law enforcement.
- $2 million for the Civil Division for additional personnel to defend challenges to the immigration laws, regulations, and policies.
- $2 million for the Environment and National Resources Division to help acquire real property along the Southwest border to be used to secure the border between the United States and Mexico.

The House Committee on Appropriations notes in its report that it provides $4 million more than the amount requested for EOIR. The total amount provided would support 449 immigration judge teams, 65 more than the number of teams funded for FY2017. The committee notes that it fully funds the requested enhancements for immigration enforcement at the Offices of the U.S. Attorneys. The committee also provided the additional funding requested for the U.S. Marshals to support border security and immigration law enforcement. The report is silent as to whether the committee provided the additional funding requested for the Civil and Environmental and Natural Resources divisions.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations is silent in its report as to whether it specifically provided funding for additional immigration judges, but it did fund the EOIR account at the level requested by the Administration. The report is silent as to whether the committee provided funding for any of the other program increases the Administration requested for immigration law enforcement.

In addition to the budgetary request, the Administration's budget also includes proposed legislative language related to immigration enforcement and "sanctuary" jurisdictions that limit law enforcement participation with federal immigration enforcement activities (Section 219 of the general provisions for DOJ).

Section 219 would amend Section 642 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (codified at 8 U.S.C. §1373) by specifying, and arguably expanding, the type of information that federal, state, and local law enforcement entities may not be limited from sharing with the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). The bar to limitations on information sharing would cover an alien's nationality, citizenship status, immigration status, removability, scheduled release date and time (for persons in custody), home address, work address, and contact information. While current law bars limitations on information sharing for any individual, Section 219 would narrow this prohibition with respect to any individual in custody or suspected of violating U.S. law.

Section 219 would also require nonfederal law enforcement entities or officials to honor any lawful requests by DHS pursuant to its mandate to enforce immigration laws, including requests to detain individuals for up to 48 hours in order for DHS to obtain custody of them.

Section 219 would allow DHS or DOJ to condition any grants of federal funds or cooperative agreements related to immigration, national security, law enforcement, and terrorism prevention and protection to states or localities by requiring that grant recipients comply with the provisions that bar limitations on information sharing, and by requiring state and local law enforcement agencies to honor DHS requests specified in Section 219. DHS or DOJ could require that such grant and cooperative agreement applicants certify, as prescribed by DHS or DOJ, that they would comply with such conditions in their applications.

Section 219 would also allow DHS or DOJ to enforce the above provisions through any lawful means.

Neither the House nor the Senate committee-reported bills include the language proposed in Section 219 of the Administration's budget request for DOJ.
