A well-chosen quote can strengthen a speech by emphasizing and reinforcing a point, tapping into the audience's memories and associations, and bolstering the speaker's credibility. The right quote can capture the listener's attention, add poignancy, and infuse drama or poetic flair.

The following resources will help the user find quotes for speeches and other communications. The resources are divided into three categories: (1) General Quotations, (2) Americana, and (3) Religion. There is some overlap among the categories.

Congressional offices that need assistance finding or verifying a quote, or that need additional information, may place a request via CRS.gov.

General Quotations

Bartleby.com's Quotations

Search this online compilation of major quotation collections in the public domain by keyword or browse each publication's index individually. Collections include

- Bartlett's Familiar Quotations (1919 edition),
- Respectfully Quoted: A Dictionary of Quotations Requested from the Congressional Research Service (1989), and
- The Oxford Shakespeare.

Today in History

Enliven a speech by citing a significant event that happened on the same day in the past. Use the "Today in History" Archive's page (part of the Library of Congress's American Memory project) to search by topic or day. "This Day in History" (from the History Channel website) also supplies brief historical information for any date.

Americana

American Rhetoric: Top 100 Speeches

This site provides the full text of famous speeches from American history, such as Martin Luther King, Jr.'s "I Have a Dream" speech and Richard Nixon's "Checkers" speech.

Democracy in America

Project Gutenberg hosts Alexis de Tocqueville's seminal Democracy in America, a political and social analysis of American democracy in the 1830s.

Federalist Papers

Browse or search the full text of the Federalist Papers (from the Library of Congress's online service at congress.gov).

Presidential Addresses

The American Presidency Project of the University of California at Santa Barbara includes the full text of Inaugural and State of the Union addresses, interviews, and additional spoken addresses and remarks.

Famous Presidential Speeches

This website from the Miller Center at the University of Virginia includes the full text of select speeches by every President, including video and audio of more recent speeches, when available.

Religion

Sacred Texts of World Religions

Search the full text of the Bible, the Book of Mormon, the Koran, and other religious texts, from the Internet Sacred Text Archive.

BibleGateway.com

This website includes options to search multiple versions of the Bible in English and dozens of other languages. It also provides a topical index.
