Federal Disaster Assistance: An Overview of Programs

This report is designed to assist Members of Congress and their staff as they address the needs of their states, communities, and constituents after a disaster. It includes a summary of federal programs that provide financial assistance for federally declared disasters to individual survivors, states, territories, tribes, local governments, and nongovernmental entities following a natural or human-caused disaster. A number of federal agencies provide financial assistance through grants, loans, and loan guarantees to assist in the provision of critical services, such as temporary housing, counseling, and infrastructure repair.

The programs summarized in this report fall into two broad categories. First, there are programs specifically authorized for use during disaster response or recovery. Most of these programs are administered by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the Small Business Administration (SBA). Second are general assistance programs that, in some instances, may be used either in relation to disaster situations or to meet other needs unrelated to a declared disaster. Many federal agencies, including the Departments of Health and Human Services (HHS) and Housing and Urban Development (HUD), administer programs that may be included in the second category.

The availability of assistance outlined in this report may vary by county, state, territory, tribe, or local government due to the manner in which it is awarded or administered. Availability of funding is not guaranteed for each program. This report also includes a list of relevant federal agency websites that provide information on disaster responses, updates on recovery efforts, and resources on federal assistance programs.

Introduction

Federal agencies provide a range of assistance to individual survivors; state, territorial, tribal, and local governments; and nongovernmental entities after major disasters (including natural disasters and human-caused disasters, such as terrorist attacks). Types of aid can include, but are not limited to, financial assistance through grants, loans, and loan guarantees; operational, logistical, and technical support; and the provision of federally owned equipment and facilities.

Many relief programs become available after the President issues a major disaster declaration pursuant to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (Stafford Act) authority.¹ More limited aid is available after a Stafford Act emergency declaration² and those declarations issued by department or agency heads.³

This report identifies programs frequently used to provide financial assistance in the disaster response and recovery process. It provides brief descriptive information to help congressional offices determine which programs merit further consideration in the planning, organization, or execution of the disaster response and recovery process.

Most of the programs listed in this report are authorized as assistance programs and are listed at the General Services Administration (GSA) website SAM.gov.⁴ Also, most of the programs listed in this report are specifically authorized for use because of a disaster. General assistance programs that may apply to disaster situations are described at the end of the report (see “Other Non-Disaster Federal Resources”).

On January 24, 2025, President Trump issued Executive Order 14180 establishing a Council to assess the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) (hereinafter “the Council”) to evaluate the agency and potential reforms. Given possible Council-related recommendations, changes in authorities, and other legislative reforms, the programs covered by FEMA in this report may be subject to change.

On January 27, 2025, the Trump Administration ordered a freeze of certain federal grants and loans. Although the freeze was later rescinded, some tribes have reported ongoing issues accessing previously awarded federal funding while disaster assistance programs, contracts, and obligations undergo additional review ordered by the Administration.⁵ The exact status of projects funded through FEMA recovery, preparedness, and mitigation program is unclear.

This report does not include operational or technical assistance that some agencies provide in emergency or disaster situations. Nor does this report include all forms of financial disaster assistance that may be available to every jurisdiction in every circumstance, as unique factors often trigger unique forms of assistance.

Also, Congress has authorized specific forms of financial assistance on a limited basis following particular disasters (such as the COVID-19 pandemic), and as Congress and presidential administrations respond to domestic needs arising from major disasters, some conditions of these programs may be changed. For the most up-to-date information on a particular program, contact the CRS analyst or program officers listed in this report.

Program Selection Criteria

Programs discussed in this report satisfy one or more of the following criteria:

- Congress expressly designated the program to provide financial assistance for disaster relief or recovery.
- The program is applicable to most disaster situations, even if not specifically authorized for that purpose.
- FEMA and other federal agencies have frequently used the program to provide financial assistance.
- The program is potentially useful for addressing short-term and long-term response and recovery needs (e.g., assistance with processing survivor benefits or repair of public facilities).

Federal Disaster Recovery Programs

Assistance for Disaster Survivors

Assistance for Real and Personal Property

Individuals and Households Program (Assistance for Housing and Other Needs)

When a disaster occurs and the President declares an emergency or major disaster authorizing Individual Assistance (IA), FEMA may assist individuals with their recovery (P.L. 93-288). One form of IA is the Individuals and Households Program (IHP), through which FEMA may provide financial and direct assistance for housing, as well as financial assistance for other needs (referred to as Other Needs Assistance, or ONA) to disaster survivors (other forms of IA are discussed later in this report).⁶ IHP assistance helps address uninsured or under-insured necessary expenses and serious needs that are disaster-caused and cannot otherwise be met; however, it is not a substitute for insurance. FEMA IHP Housing Assistance includes different forms of temporary housing assistance, as well as assistance for home repairs or replacement and permanent housing construction. IHP ONA funds may be used for funeral, medical and dental, childcare, personal property, transportation, and other disaster-caused expenses, such as funding for essential items.⁷

There are some limitations on IHP assistance. For example, IHP assistance is intended to be temporary and is generally limited to a period of 18 months from the date of the major disaster or emergency declaration, but may be extended by FEMA.⁸ Additionally, IHP awards for Financial Housing Assistance and ONA are subject to statutory funding caps that limit the amount of financial assistance an individual or household may receive.⁹ Assistance for housing-related needs may not exceed $43,600 (FY2025; adjusted annually),¹⁰ and assistance for ONA may not exceed $43,600 (FY2025; adjusted annually).¹¹ The exceptions are that financial assistance to rent alternate housing accommodations¹² and financial assistance for accessibility-related real and personal property costs are not subject to the cap.¹³ The amount of financial assistance an applicant receives through the IHP will vary based on their personal circumstances, including based on considerations such as the loss amount determined by FEMA's inspection, and to what extent the applicant's real and personal property losses were insured.

Applicants (i.e., individuals or households) may register for FEMA IHP assistance online, via telephone, or in person. Applicants generally have 60 days from the IA declaration to apply for IHP assistance, but FEMA may accept late registrations for an additional 60 days if the applicant provides a reasonable explanation for the delay (no written justification or documentation explaining the circumstances that prevented them from applying on time are required).¹⁴ The registration period can be extended at the request of the affected state/territory/tribe (with approval from FEMA).

The IHP (and most other aid authorized under the Stafford Act) is funded through the Disaster Relief Fund (DRF). FEMA provides 100% of the housing assistance costs, and ONA is subject to a 75% federal and 25% nonfederal cost share (borne by the affected state, territory, or tribe).¹⁵

Physical Disaster Loans—Residential SBA Disaster Loans Available to Homeowners and Renters

The Small Business Administration (SBA) provides disaster loans to help homeowners and renters rebuild and recover from disasters. Homeowners and renters living in a declared disaster area (and in contiguous counties) may apply directly to the SBA for a disaster loan.

SBA Home Disaster Loans are divided into two categories: (1) personal property loans and (2) real property loans. These loans cover only uninsured or underinsured property and primary residences. Loan maturities may be up to 30 years.¹⁶

Personal Property Loans

A personal property loan provides a creditworthy homeowner or renter with up to $100,000 to repair or replace disaster-damaged personal property items, such as furniture, clothing, appliances, or automobiles.¹⁷

Real Property Loans

A real property disaster loan provides creditworthy homeowners with up to $500,000 to repair or restore their primary residence to its pre-disaster condition.¹⁸ A real property loan may be increased by 20% for repairs to protect the damaged property from a similar disaster in the future.¹⁹

National Flood Insurance Program

Since 1968, the federal government has pursued a comprehensive flood risk management strategy designed to (1) identify and map flood-prone communities across the country (flood hazard mapping); (2) encourage property owners in National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP)-participating communities to purchase insurance as a protection against flood losses (flood insurance); and (3) require communities in designated flood risk zones to adopt and enforce approved floodplain management ordinances to reduce future flood risk to construction in regulated floodplains (floodplain management). The Federal Insurance Directorate (FID), a part of FEMA, manages the NFIP. Policyholders can file NFIP claims after any flood and claims do not require any form of disaster declaration.

To reduce comprehensive flood risk, FEMA also operates a Flood Mitigation Assistance (FMA) Grant Program.

FMA grants are available only to communities that participate in the NFIP, to assist in efforts to reduce or eliminate flood damage to buildings and structures insurable under the NFIP, particularly repetitive loss²⁰ and severe repetitive loss²¹ properties. The FMA Program awards grants for a number of purposes, including state and local mitigation planning; the elevation, relocation, demolition, or flood proofing of structures; the acquisition of properties; and other activities.²² For more information, see CRS In Focus IF10988, A Brief Introduction to the National Flood Insurance Program, by Diane P. Unemployment Assistance

Disaster Unemployment Assistance

Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA) provides benefits to previously employed or self-employed individuals rendered jobless as a direct result of a presidentially declared major disaster and who are ineligible for regular federal or state unemployment compensation (UC). In certain cases, individuals who have no work history or are unable to work may also be eligible for DUA benefits. DUA benefits are funded through the Disaster Relief Fund (DRF) administered by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). The Department of Labor (DOL) oversees the DUA program and coordinates with FEMA to provide the funds to the state UC agencies for payment of DUA benefits and payment of state administrative costs under agreements with DOL.

In general, individuals must apply for benefits within 30 days after the date the state announces availability of DUA benefits. When applicants have good cause, they may file claims after the 30-day deadline.²³ This deadline may be extended; however, initial applications filed after the 26th week following the declaration date will not be considered.²⁴

When a reasonable comparative earnings history can be constructed, DUA benefits are determined in a similar manner to regular state UC benefit rules. The minimum weekly DUA benefit is required to be half of the average weekly UC benefit for the state where the disaster occurred.

²¹ Severe repetitive loss properties are those that have incurred four or more claim payments exceeding $5,000 each, with a cumulative amount of such payments over $20,000, or at least two claims with a cumulative total exceeding the value of the property. See 42 U.S.C. §4014(h) and 44 C.F.R. §79.2(h).

DUA assistance is available to eligible individuals as long as the major disaster continues, but no longer than 26 weeks after the disaster declaration. For more information, see CRS Report RS22022, Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA), by Julie M. Whittaker.

Dislocated Worker Activities

The Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) Dislocated Worker Employment and Training Activities (DW) program helps fund training and related assistance to individuals who have lost their jobs and are unlikely to return to their current jobs or industries due to a specific incident, such as being part of a mass layoff. Of the funds appropriated, 80% are allotted by formula grants to states and local entities and 20% are retained by the Secretary of Labor to fund a national reserve that supports dislocated worker grants to states or local entities. One type of national dislocated worker grant is Disaster Relief Employment Assistance, under which funds can be made available to states to employ dislocated workers in temporary jobs involving recovery after an emergency or disaster.²⁵ An individual may be employed for up to 12 months.²⁶ There are no matching requirements for WIOA programs. Other Assistance for Disaster Survivors

Crisis Counseling

The Crisis Counseling Assistance and Training Program (CCP) provides grants that supplement states', territories', and tribes' community-based outreach and educational services, when required, to support disaster survivors affected by a presidential emergency or major disaster declaration under the Stafford Act.²⁷ CCP is intended to relieve adverse behavioral and psychological effects caused or aggravated by the emergency or major disaster, or its aftermath. Assistance is short-term and community-oriented, and it includes services such as assisting disaster survivors with developing coping strategies and connecting disaster survivors with other resources.

CCP may be provided upon the request of an affected state, territorial, or tribal government and requires a needs assessment and a federal grant award application. Cost-share requirements are not imposed on this assistance.²⁸

There are two separate CCP grant programs: the Immediate Services Program (ISP) and the Regular Services Program (RSP). The CCP regulations and guidance specify the application deadlines and timing for the availability of program funding. ISP funding is provided for up to 60 days following the approval of Individual Assistance for a major disaster. RSP funding is provided for up to nine months following the date of the notice of award. However, funding time extensions may be approved if requested by the state, territory, or tribe and approved by federal officials.²⁹

Disaster Legal Services

Through the Disaster Legal Services (DLS) program, attorneys provide legal advice, counseling, and representation in non-fee-generating cases for free to low-income individuals in order to help them secure benefits and make claims arising out of a major disaster.³⁰ Assistance may include help with insurance claims, drawing up new wills and other legal documents lost in the disaster, help with home repair contracts and contractors, and appeals of FEMA decisions.³¹

The affected SLTT government may request DLS, and DLS is provided through an agreement that FEMA has with the American Bar Association's Young Lawyer's Division. Disaster survivors can access such assistance via a local toll-free hotline and through Disaster Recovery Centers. Disaster Legal Services are provided until they are no longer needed, and the federal government covers 100% of the costs.³² For additional information on DLS, see CRS Report R46014, FEMA Individual Assistance Programs: An Overview, by Elizabeth M. Webster.

Disaster Case Management

The Disaster Case Management (DCM) program partners case managers with disaster survivors to develop and implement individual disaster recovery plans and address their unmet needs.³³

Following a presidentially declared major disaster that includes Individual Assistance (IA), FEMA may provide DCM—there are two forms of DCM. FEMA can directly implement, administer, and oversee Immediate Disaster Case Management (IDCM), when FEMA determines it is needed. IDCM provides short-term services to address immediate disaster-caused unmet needs, and refers disaster survivors to resources for 90-180 days. FEMA can also provide federal grant funding for state/territory/tribe-managed DCM, which provides longer-term services, with a period of performance of up to 24 months from the declaration date that may be extended for 90 days.³⁴ DCM funding requires a needs assessment and a federal grant award application. The federal government covers 100% of the costs.³⁵ For additional information on DCM, see CRS Report R46014, FEMA Individual Assistance Programs: An Overview, by Elizabeth M. Webster.

Tax Provisions

The Internal Revenue Code (IRC) includes tax provisions that apply to individuals and businesses affected by federally declared disasters. For example, individuals located in affected areas are allowed additional time (four years instead of the typical two) to replace homes due to involuntary conversion (e.g., destruction from wind or floods, theft, or property ordered to be demolished) and still defer any gain.³⁶ Taxpayers may also be able to deduct personal casualty losses attributable to federally declared disasters, subject to certain limitations.³⁷ Qualifying disaster relief payments received by affected individuals are not subject to tax.³⁸ Tax filing deadlines are automatically postponed for 60 days following federally declared disasters declared after December 20, 2019, and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) may further postpone tax filing or other deadlines in response to federally declared disasters.³⁹ Per the Filing Relief for Natural Disaster Act (P.L. 119-29), the IRS may postpone certain deadlines at the request of a governor (or mayor in the case of the District of Columbia) as well.

In addition to these and other permanent tax relief provisions, special temporary provisions have been enacted for certain disasters.⁴⁰ For example,

- the Taxpayer Certainty and Disaster Tax Relief Act of 2019 (Division Q of the Further Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2020; P.L. 116-94) provided relief for major disasters that occurred in 2018 or 2019, and
- the Taxpayer Certainty and Disaster Tax Relief Act of 2020 (Division EE of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021; P.L. 116-260) provided relief for major disasters that generally occurred in 2020. Subsequent legislation extended this relief, most recently by the 2025 reconciliation law (P.L. 119-21) for major disasters beginning on or before July 4, 2025.

Certain state-declared disasters will also qualify, starting in the 2026 tax year; per the Filing Relief for Natural Disaster Act (P.L. 119-29), the IRS may grant tax relief when a governor declares a disaster or state emergency.

Assistance for State, Tribes, Territories, and Units of Local Governments, and Eligible Nonprofit Organizations

FEMA Public Assistance Grants

Authorized by multiple sections of the Stafford Act, the Public Assistance (PA) Grant Program is FEMA's primary form of financial assistance for state, tribal, territorial, and local governments, as well as eligible private nonprofit organizations (PNPs). The PA Program provides grant assistance as well as direct assistance (e.g., supplies, personnel, and facilities) for many eligible purposes, including the following:

- PA for Emergency work, as authorized by Sections 402, 403, 407, 418, 419, 428, and 502 of the Stafford Act, provides assistance for the removal of debris and implementation of emergency protective measures, such as the establishment of temporary shelters and emergency power generation.⁴¹
- PA for Permanent work, as authorized by Sections 406 and 428, provides assistance for the repair, replacement, or restoration of disaster-damaged, publicly owned facilities and the facilities of certain PNPs. At its discretion, FEMA may also provide PA for hazard mitigation measures that are not required

⁴¹ Stafford Act Sections 418 and 419 authorize only direct federal assistance for emergency communications and emergency public transportation, respectively (42 U.S.C. §§5185 and 5186).

- by applicable codes and standards. As a condition of PA assistance, applicants must obtain and maintain insurance on their facilities for similar future disasters.
- Management costs, as authorized by Section 324, reimburse some of the administrative expenses incurred while managing PA grants.

Eligible PNPs are generally eligible for permanent work assistance if they provide a governmental type of service.⁴²

The federal government provides a minimum of 75% of the cost of eligible assistance, though the President may increase the cost share. FEMA may recommend an increase if certain criteria are met.⁴³ Funding for the PA Program comes through discretionary appropriations to the Disaster Relief Fund.

As noted in the introduction to this report, FEMA and DHS have launched new, enhanced reviews of disaster assistance programs, as ordered by officials within the Trump Administration.⁴⁴ The President has approved the provision of PA in some new Stafford Act declarations, and FEMA continues to obligate projects. However, some states have not received PA for disasters as expected given existing procedures, and others have experienced delays in receiving obligations for some projects.⁴⁵

FEMA Hazard Mitigation Grant Program

The Hazard Mitigation Grant Program (HMGP) provides grants to states for implementing mitigation measures after a disaster and provides funding for previously identified mitigation measures to reduce future damage and loss of life. The federal government provides up to 75% of the cost share of eligible projects. The amount available for HMGP awards is established by a scale that authorizes three tiers of awards: (1) 15% of the total of other Stafford Act assistance in a state for a major disaster in which no more than $2 billion is provided; (2) 10% for assistance that ranges between $2 billion to $10 billion; and (3) 7.5% for a major disaster that involves

Stafford Act assistance between $10 billion to $35.3 billion.⁴⁶ States with an approved Enhanced State Mitigation Plan in effect before a disaster are eligible for HMGP funding of 20% of the estimated total amount of disaster assistance awarded by FEMA for that disaster.⁴⁷

Funding for HMGP comes from the Disaster Relief Fund. HMGP funding is awarded with a major disaster declaration or a Fire Management Assistance Grant (FMAG).⁴⁸ States can use HMGP funds for any eligible activity for any type of hazard and are not limited to the hazard or area for which the grant was awarded. For example, funding allocated for flooding in one county could be used for wildfire mitigation in a different county, as long as the activity is eligible. The decision is made by the state where the funding can best be used, and decisions about allocating HMGP funds to subapplicants are made by the state.⁴⁹

Building Resilient Infrastructure and Communities (BRIC)

Building Resilient Infrastructure and Communities (BRIC)⁵⁰ was introduced in FY2020 to use the new funding authorized by the Disaster Recovery Reform Act (DRRA, P.L. 115-254). Any state that had a major disaster declaration under the Stafford Act during the seven years before the application start date was eligible to apply. All states, territories, and recognized tribal governments were eligible at least through FY2026 due to the COVID-19 pandemic disaster declarations. BRIC began in FY2020, with $500 million available in FY2020, $1 billion in FY2021, $2.295 billion in FY2022, and $1 billion in FY2023.

FEMA announced in April 2025 that it was ending the pre-disaster mitigation program providing grants and technical assistance to states, territories, and local communities known as BRIC. FEMA also announced that it was cancelling applications to the program in prior years, and that money previously awarded but not distributed will be given back to the federal government. According to the announcement, approximately $882 million of funding from the IIJA will be returned to the Treasury or reappropriated by Congress in the next fiscal year. If grant funds have not been distributed to STTs, funds will immediately be returned to the DRF or Treasury.⁵¹

⁴⁹ State agencies and federally recognized tribes applying for HMGP funding must have a FEMA-approved State or Tribal Mitigation Plan at the time of the presidential major disaster declaration and at the time the HMGP funding is obligated. All subapplicants for HMGP must have a FEMA-approved Local or Tribal Mitigation Plan at the time of obligation of grant funds.

On July 16, 2025, 19 states and the governor of Pennsylvania filed a lawsuit against FEMA,⁵² accusing the Administration of illegally ending BRIC and requesting that the court, among other things, preliminarily and permanently enjoin FEMA’s termination of BRIC and any action to implement that termination, and maintain all funds allocated to BRIC.⁵³

The U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts held a hearing, and on August 5, 2025, granted the motion for a preliminary injunction, “enjoin[ing] [the government] from spending the funds allocated to BRIC for non-BRIC purposes until the court is able to render a final judgment on the merits.”⁵⁴ An amended complaint was also filed on September 3, 2025.⁵⁵

Safeguarding Tomorrow Revolving Loan Fund Program (STRLF)

A new source of hazard mitigation funding became available in FY2022 through the Safeguarding Tomorrow through Ongoing Risk Mitigation Act, or the STORM Act (P.L. 116-284).⁵⁶ This law amended the Stafford Act by authorizing FEMA to enter into agreements with eligible entities to establish hazard mitigation revolving loan funds.⁵⁷ Funds made available through the STRLF may be used to assist homeowners, businesses, certain nonprofit organizations, and communities to reduce risk in order to decrease the loss of life and property, the cost of flood insurance, and federal disaster payments. In addition to funding mitigation activities, STRLF loans can be used for the nonfederal cost share for other FEMA mitigation programs.

Eligible entities include states and territories, and federally recognized tribes, which received a major disaster declaration. All participating entities are required to provide matching funds from nonfederal sources in an amount equal to 10% of the amount that they receive for the revolving

FEMA Community Disaster Loans

The Community Disaster Loan (CDL) program provides loans to local governments that have suffered substantial loss of tax and other revenue in areas included in a major disaster declaration. A government may apply from the end of the incident period, as determined by FEMA, through the end of the following fiscal year. Typically, the loan may not exceed 25% of the local government's annual operating budget for the fiscal year of the disaster. The limit is 50% if the local government lost 75% or more of its annual operating budget. A loan may not exceed $5 million,⁵⁹ and there is no matching requirement.

The statute does not impose time limitations on the assistance, but the normal term of a CDL is five years, extendable to 10 years. The statute provides that the repayment requirement is partially or fully cancelled if local government revenues are not sufficient to meet operational expenses during a three-fiscal-year period after a disaster.⁶⁰ The governor's authorized representative must approve the application and funds must be available in the Disaster Assistance Direct Loan Program (DADLP) account.⁶¹

In P.L. 115-72, Congress provided up to $4.9 billion for the CDL program to assist local governments in providing essential services as a result of Hurricanes Harvey, Irma, or Maria.⁶² However, this legislation departed from the traditional CDL program framework by giving the Secretary of Homeland Security (in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury) broad authority over lending terms, eligible uses, and criteria for loan cancellation, among other program elements. As a result, this CDL-type program operates differently from the traditional program.⁶³ Congress forgave all outstanding CDLs as of September 30, 2021, including those from 2017, in P.L. 117-43.

FEMA Fire Management Assistance Grant (FMAG) Program

This program provides grants to state and local governments to aid states and their communities with the mitigation, management, and control of fires actively burning on publicly or privately owned forests or grasslands that might become a major disaster. The federal government provides 75% of the costs associated with fire management projects,⁶⁴ but funding is limited to calculations of the “fire cost threshold” for each state.⁶⁵ No time limitation is applied to the program. Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund

Congress created the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund (OSLTF) in 1986.⁶⁶ The OSLTF may be used, among other purposes, to fund oil spill response activities and to compensate individuals, businesses, and governments for applicable economic damages resulting from an oil spill.⁶⁷ Potential damages include injury or loss of property and loss of profits or earning capacity. The OSLTF complements the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (OPA; P.L. 101-380), which established a new federal oil spill liability framework, replaced existing federal liability frameworks, and amended the existing Clean Water Act oil spill response authorities. In addition, OPA transferred monies into the OSLTF from existing liability funds. Subsequent laws authorized the OSLTF taxing authority, appropriations from the fund, and eligible uses for the fund. Historically, the OSLTF has been financed primarily by a per-barrel excise tax on domestic crude oil and imported petroleum products.

OPA established a claims process for compensating parties affected by an oil spill. In general, claims must be presented first to the party responsible for the spill, but specific circumstances (e.g., the responsible party is unknown) allow persons to present a claim directly to the OSLTF.⁶⁸ The Coast Guard created the National Pollution Funds Center (NPFC) to manage the trust fund in 1991. The NPFC evaluates claims to the OSLTF.

Community Development Block Grants for Disaster Recovery (CDBG-DR)

In response to some major disasters and emergencies, Congress has provided supplemental funding for long-term disaster recovery under the conventional Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program’s statutory authority—commonly referred to as CDBG-DR.⁶⁹ Eligible CDBG-DR grantees may include states, localities, insular areas, and tribes.⁷⁰ The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) allocates funds to grantees based on congressional direction in supplemental appropriations acts and a calculation of unmet needs from other sources of federal disaster assistance.⁷¹ Typically, CDBG-DR funds are directed to the most impacted and distressed areas with federal emergency or disaster declarations under the Stafford Act.⁷² In some cases, Congress has provided additional supplemental CDBG funds specifically for activities related to mitigation against future disaster effects and risk.

CDBG-DR funds are subject to the conventional CDBG program’s statutory and regulatory requirements,⁷³ unless otherwise specified by HUD in the CDBG-DR Universal Notice or subsequent rulemaking.⁷⁴ Grantees may use CDBG-DR funds for long-term disaster recovery activities related to housing, infrastructure, and economic revitalization, primarily for the benefit of low- and moderate-income residents.⁷⁵ Additionally, the conventional CDBG program statute allows grantees, in some cases, to use program funds to satisfy nonfederal cost share requirements of other forms of federal disaster assistance.⁷⁶

USDA Emergency Loans for Farms

When a county has been declared a disaster area by either the President or the Secretary of Agriculture, agricultural producers in that county may become eligible for low-interest emergency disaster (EM) loans available through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Service Agency. Producers in counties that are contiguous to a county with a disaster designation also may become eligible for an EM loan.

EM loan funds may be used to help eligible farmers, ranchers, and aquaculture producers recover from production losses (e.g., when the producer suffers a significant loss of an annual crop) or from physical losses (e.g., repairing or replacing damaged or destroyed structures or equipment, or replanting permanent crops, such as orchards). Notes: The “Purpose of Assistance” column indicates the overarching function of each assistance program, either response, recovery, and/or mitigation.

Response is defined by FEMA as “including those capabilities necessary to save lives, protect property and the environment, and meet basic human needs after an incident has occurred. It is focused on ensuring that the Nation is able to effectively respond to any threat or hazard, including those with cascading effects. Response emphasizes saving and sustaining lives, stabilizing the incident, rapidly meeting basic human needs, restoring basic services and technologies, restoring community functionality, providing universal accessibility, establishing a safe and secure environment, and supporting the transition to recovery.” See FEMA’s National Preparedness Goal, Second Edition, September 2015, at <https://www.fema.gov/emergency-managers/national-preparedness/goal>.

Recovery is defined by FEMA as “capabilities necessary to assist communities affected by an incident to recover effectively. Support for recovery ensures a continuum of care for individuals to maintain and restore health, safety, independence and livelihoods, especially those who experience financial, emotional, and physical hardships. Successful recovery ensures that we emerge from any threat or hazard stronger and positioned to meet the needs of the future. Recovery capabilities support well-coordinated, transparent, and timely restoration, strengthening, and revitalization of infrastructure and housing; an economic base; health and social systems; and a revitalized cultural, historic, and environmental fabric.” See FEMA’s National Preparedness Goal, Second Edition, September 2015, at <https://www.fema.gov/emergency-managers/national-preparedness/goal>.

Hazard Mitigation is defined by FEMA as “any sustainable action that reduces or eliminates long-term risk to people and property from future disasters.” For additional information about FEMA’s hazard mitigation assistance, see FEMA’s website at <https://www.fema.gov/grants/mitigation>. FEMA also provides this definition on page I of the Hazard Mitigation Assistance Program and Policy Guide, along with a sentence distinguishing mitigation from preparedness, response, and recovery activities; see https://www.fema.gov/sites/default/files/documents/fema_hma_guide_08232023_v1.pdf.

Other Non-Disaster Federal Resources

In addition to programs described above, other general assistance programs may be useful to communities experiencing disasters. For example, individuals who lose income, employment, or health insurance may become eligible for programs that are not specifically intended as disaster relief but may address emergent needs, such as cash assistance under the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) program, job training under the Workforce Investment Act, Medicaid, or the State Children's Health Insurance Program (S-CHIP).

Likewise, state or local officials may have the discretion to use funds from programs such as the Social Services Block Grant or Community Development Block Grant to meet disaster-related needs, even though these programs were not established specifically for such purposes. Other agencies may offer assistance to state and local governments, including the Economic Development Administration and the Army Corps of Engineers. For businesses, federal disaster assistance is provided primarily by the Small Business Administration.

Available funds might already be obligated for ongoing program activities. To the extent that federal agencies have discretion in the administration of programs, some agencies may choose to adapt these nontargeted programs for use in disaster situations, such as the conventional CDBG program. Also, Congress may choose to provide additional funds through emergency supplemental appropriations for certain general assistance programs, specifically for use after a disaster.⁷⁹
