

Senate Floor Privileges: History and Current Practice

Updated December 18, 2025

Congressional Research Service

<https://crsreports.congress.gov>

R46257

R46257

December 18, 2025

Jane A. Hudiburg

Analyst on Congress and the Legislative Process

Senate Floor Privileges: History and Current Practice

Senate Standing Rule XXIII, Privilege of the Floor, designates those individuals afforded access to the Senate floor while the Senate is in session. In addition to sitting Senators, the rule lists several eligible positions, including certain current and former congressional, executive, and judicial officials; state and territorial governors; the mayor of the District of Columbia; members of foreign national legislatures; the nation’s highest ranking military leaders; and, under specified circumstances, congressional staff members assisting Senators on the floor.

Over its history, the Senate has amended the floor privilege rule to add or clarify positional categories. The Senate has also agreed to a number of resolutions and unanimous consent (UC) agreements that affect the interpretation of the rule. The Senate, by resolution or UC, frequently provides temporary floor access to non-designated individuals. Less commonly, it has agreed to temporarily restrict access to the Senate floor. Such restrictions have occurred in advance of the Senate’s move to its current chamber in 1859 and during the impeachment trials of Presidents Andrew Johnson (1868), Bill Clinton (1999), and Donald Trump (2020 and 2021). In 2007, the Senate amended Rule XXIII to exclude lobbyists from the floor, even if these individuals would otherwise be granted floor privileges under the rule. Additional changes to the rule or its interpretation include the first time a female staff member accessed the Senate floor (1946); when the Senate agreed to resolutions to accommodate staff with disabilities (e.g., allow the use of a service dog in the chamber, 1997); and when it permitted Senators, accompanied by their infant children, to vote on the Senate floor (2018).

Rule XXIII permits certain staff members of individual Senators and Senate committees and joint committees to have access to the floor “when in the discharge of their official duties.” Staff access is further regulated by policies outlined in a recurring UC agreement approved at the start of each Congress, as well as those policies established by the Senate Rules and Administration Committee. For instance, each Senator is limited to two staff members on the floor at the same time. UC agreements may provide access to individuals not listed in Rule XXIII or enable more than two staff members from the same Senate office on the floor at one time. The Office of the Sergeant at Arms (SAA) enforces Senate Rule XXIII, as well as any associated resolutions or UC agreements, regarding floor access.

Contents

Introduction .....	1
Current Senate Rule XXIII .....	1
Positions Granted Floor Privileges.....	1
Provision Excluding Lobbyists .....	3
Regulation and Enforcement of the Rule .....	3
Exceptions to the Rule .....	3
Evolution of Rule .....	4
1789-1977 .....	4
First Identified Senate Policy Regulating Floor Privileges (1798) .....	4
President Johnson Impeachment Trial (1868).....	6
First Regular Senate Staff Members Given Floor Privileges Under Standing Rules (1872).....	6
George Bancroft: Only Individual Identified by Name Afforded Floor Privileges Under the Standing Rules (1879-1891) .....	7
First Female Staff Member Granted Floor Privileges (1946) .....	8
1978-Present.....	9
Recurring Unanimous Consent Agreement: Two Staff Members per Senator on Floor at One Time with Pre-Notification of Journal Clerk (1978) .....	9
Rules Revisions of 1979 and 1980.....	9
Standing Order: Disability Accommodations for Staff (1997) .....	10
President Clinton Impeachment Trial (1999).....	11
Exclusion of Lobbyists (2007).....	12
Infants on Floor During Votes (2018) .....	12
First President Trump Impeachment Trial (2020).....	12
Second President Trump Impeachment Trial (2021) .....	14
Obtaining Staff Floor Privileges.....	14
Access Under the Pre-Notification Floor Pass Procedure.....	14
Pre-Notification via the ServiceNow Portal of the Senate Sergeant at Arms .....	14
Floor Pass Allotment.....	15
Obtaining Floor Passes .....	15
Limitations on Use of Floor Passes .....	15
Access by Unanimous Consent.....	16
Reasons for UC Requests.....	16
Language Used in UC Requests .....	16

Contacts

Author Information.....	16
-------------------------	----

Introduction

Senate Rule XXIII lists, by position category, individuals who, other than Senators, shall be permitted floor privileges in the Senate chamber when the Senate is in session. As President of the Senate, the Vice President is afforded floor privileges, even when not expected to perform formal or ceremonial duties. Additional categories include former Senators and other high-level officials and certain staff members conducting Senate business in the chamber. However, as amended in 2007, the rule excludes individuals who would otherwise be allowed if they are registered lobbyists or acting as an agent of a foreign principal.

Over its history, the Senate has amended its floor privileges rule to add or modify the list of those granted access. The Senate has also agreed to resolutions and unanimous consent (UC) agreements that have further clarified the rule, established procedures regarding staff access, or allowed individuals not designated in the rule onto the floor.

This report discusses the current positional categories listed in Rule XXIII, as well as the history of Senate floor privileges, beginning with the first identified Senate resolution regulating non-Senator access to the chamber in 1798. Relevant standing orders and UC agreements are included, along with guidance on obtaining staff access through the Sergeant at Arms floor pass system or by unanimous consent.

Current Senate Rule XXIII

Positions Granted Floor Privileges

Rule XXIII designates the individuals who are granted floor privileges in the Senate chamber. This list contains many of the same categories that were in place during the late 19th century, as well as official positions that were established at a later time: the mayor of Washington, DC; the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and members of the European Parliament.<sup>1</sup>

Rule XXIII, Privilege of the Floor, paragraphs 1 and 2, states:

1. Other than the Vice President and Senators, no person shall be admitted to the floor of the Senate while in session, except as follows:

The President of the United States and his private secretary.

The President elect and Vice President elect of the United States.

Ex-Presidents and ex-Vice Presidents of the United States.

Judges of the Supreme Court.

Ex-Senators and Senators elect, except as provided in paragraph 2.<sup>2</sup>

The officers and employees of the Senate in the discharge of their official duties.

Ex-Secretaries and ex-Sergeants at Arms of the Senate, except as provided in paragraph 2.

---

<sup>1</sup> The office of an elected mayor of the District of Columbia was provided for in the District of Columbia Home Rule Act (P.L. 93-198). The first mayor took office in January 1975. The Joint Chiefs of Staff was established under the National Security Act of 1947 (P.L. 80-253). The members of the European Parliament were first elected in 1979.

<sup>2</sup> The Senate has afforded Senators-elect in contested elections floor privileges as well as “the right to address the Senate in support of their claim to a seat.” Floyd M. Riddick and Alan S. Frumin, Riddick’s Senate Procedure: Precedents and Practices, S.Doc. 101-28, 101st Cong., 2nd sess. (Washington: GPO, 1992), p. 845.

Members of the House of Representatives and Members elect.

Ex-Speakers of the House of Representatives, except as provided in paragraph 2.

The Sergeant at Arms of the House and his chief deputy and the Clerk of the House and his deputy.

Heads of the Executive Departments.<sup>3</sup>

Ambassadors and Ministers of the United States.

Governors of States and Territories.

Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The General Commanding the Army.

The Senior Admiral of the Navy on the active list.

Members of National Legislatures of foreign countries and Members of the European Parliament.

Judges of the Court of Claims.

The Mayor of the District of Columbia.

The Librarian of Congress and the Assistant Librarian in charge of the Law Library.

The Architect of the Capitol.

The Chaplain of the House of Representatives.

The Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

The Parliamentarian Emeritus of the Senate.

Members of the staffs of committees of the Senate and joint committees of the Congress when in the discharge of their official duties and employees in the office of a Senator when in the discharge of their official duties (but in each case subject to such rules or regulations as may be prescribed by the Committee on Rules and Administration). Senate committee staff members and employees in the office of a Senator must be on the payroll of the Senate and members of joint committee staffs must be on the payroll of the Senate or the House of Representatives.

2. (a) The floor privilege provided in paragraph 1 shall not apply, when the Senate is in session, to an individual covered by this paragraph who is—

(1) a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal; or

(2) in the employ of or represents any party or organization for the purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, the passage, defeat, or amendment of any Federal legislative proposal.

(b) The Committee on Rules and Administration may promulgate regulations to allow individuals covered by this paragraph floor privileges for ceremonial functions and events designated by the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader.<sup>4</sup>

---

<sup>3</sup> The Senate has interpreted Heads of the Executive Departments to mean members of the Cabinet. See Riddick's Senate Procedure, p. 846.

<sup>4</sup> U.S. Congress, Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, Senate Manual Containing the Standing Rules, Orders, Laws, and Resolutions Affecting the Business, 118th Cong., 2nd sess., 2024, S.Doc. 118-1 (GPO, 2024), §23.1, pp. 23-24.

Provision Excluding Lobbyists

In 2007, the Senate amended Rule XXIII to exclude from the chamber persons who are otherwise allowed entrance if they are registered as lobbyists, acting as foreign agents, or representing an entity for the “purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, the passage, defeat, or amendment of any Federal legislative proposal.” This exclusion, adding a new subparagraph 2(a), applies when the Senate is in session. More information on the lobbyist exclusion is presented in the evolution of the rule section of this report.<sup>5</sup>

Regulation and Enforcement of the Rule

Senate Rule XXIII, paragraph 2, states that “it shall be the duty of the Committee on Rules and Administration to make all rules and regulations respecting such parts of the Capitol ... as are or may be set apart for the use of the Senate and its officers.”<sup>6</sup> Accordingly, the committee issues regulations for the Senate chamber and its galleries, which are printed in the Senate Manual and the Congressional Record.<sup>7</sup>

Regulation 3.0 specifies that the Senate Sergeant at Arms, under the direction of the presiding officer, enforces the rules associated with the Senate chamber. This officer supervises the Senate floor at all times and ensures that designated subordinates are in performance of their chamber-related duties. In addition, the Sergeant at Arms “shall see that the messengers assigned to the doors upon the Senate Floor are at their posts and that the Senate Floor, Cloakrooms, and Senate Lobby are cleared at least five minutes before the opening of daily sessions of all persons not entitled to remain there.”<sup>8</sup>

Exceptions to the Rule

Pursuant to paragraph 2(b) of Rule XXIII, the Committee on Rules and Administration may promulgate regulations to allow individuals covered under paragraph 2(a) floor access “for ceremonial functions and events designated by the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader.” Thus, on certain occasions, such as opening day of a Congress, former Senators and other individuals may be invited into the chamber, even if they would otherwise be prevented by the ban on registered lobbyists.

Temporary floor access may also be granted by unanimous consent. For instance, in 1929, unanimous consent enabled a Senator-elect to have his physician accompany him into the Senate chamber.<sup>9</sup> Unanimous consent is often used to grant temporary access to House officials, such as the House Parliamentarian, or Senate interns or fellows who are not on the Senate payroll.<sup>10</sup>

<sup>5</sup> Paragraph 3 of Rule XXIII was added at the same time as paragraph 2. Paragraph 3 states: “A former Member of the Senate may not exercise privileges to use Senate athletic facilities or Member-only parking spaces if such Member is— (a) a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal; or (b) in the employ of or represents any party or organization for the purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, the passage, defeat, or amendment of any Federal legislative proposal.”

<sup>6</sup> Senate Manual, 118th Cong., 2nd sess., §33.2, p. 60.

<sup>7</sup> Senate Manual, 118th Cong., 2nd sess., §150, p. 203; Congressional Record, daily edition, 119th Cong., 1st sess. (January 3, 2025), pp. S20-23.

<sup>8</sup> Congressional Record, daily edition, 119th Cong., 1st sess. (January 3, 2025), p. S20.

<sup>9</sup> Riddick’s Senate Procedure, p. 846.

<sup>10</sup> Riddick’s Senate Procedure, p. 847.

Evolution of Rule

1789-1977

In the earliest years of Congress, 1789-1795, the Senate closed its chamber to the public and the press. In 1795, the Senate, then meeting in the temporary capitol in Philadelphia, installed a public gallery but apparently had no official rules regarding floor access for non-Senators.

First Identified Senate Policy Regulating Floor Privileges (1798)

The first identified policy concerning floor access was established in 1798. The Senate resolved, “That no motion shall be deemed in order to admit any person, or persons, whatever, within the doors of the Senate chamber, to present any petition, memorial, or address, or to hear any such read.”<sup>11</sup> The Senate continued to follow this policy after it moved to the north wing of the Capitol Building in 1800. In 1806, the policy was codified in the first major revision of the standing rules, and it remained in the rules until the general revision of 1877.<sup>12</sup>

In the 1820 revision of the rules, the Senate established an additional rule regarding floor access. Standing Rule 38 then stated, “When acting on confidential or executive business, the Senate shall be cleared of all persons, except the Secretary, the Sergeant-at-Arms, and Door-Keeper, or, in his absence, the assistant door-keeper.”<sup>13</sup>

On the opening day of the 24th Congress (1835-1837), the Senate agreed to a resolution, dated December 7, 1835, that set aside the circular gallery for the “accommodation of ladies and the gentlemen accompanying them” and provided, “The reporters shall be removed from the east gallery, and placed on the floor of the Senate, under the direction of the Secretary.” Furthermore, the resolution listed positional categories, in addition to reporters, that were allowed access to the floor. It stated, “No person, except members of the House of Representatives, their Clerk, Heads of Departments, Treasurer, Comptrollers, Register, Auditors, Postmaster General, President’s Secretary, Chaplains to Congress, Judges of the United States, foreign Ministers and their Secretaries, officers who by name have received or shall hereafter receive the thanks of Congress for their gallantry and good conduct displayed in the service of their country, the Commissioners of the Navy Board, Governor for the time being of any State or Territory of the Union, such gentlemen as have been heads of Departments, or members of either branch of the Legislature, and, at the discretion of the President of the Senate, persons who belong to such Legislatures of foreign Governments as are in amity with the United States, shall be admitted on the floor of the Senate.”<sup>14</sup>

By resolution, in 1854, the Senate amended its floor privilege rule (then Senate Rule 48). While the updated rule did not grant floor access to reporters, who at the time observed the chamber’s proceedings from a reporters’ gallery, it did expand the list of other categories admitted. The new list formed the basis for the current Rule XXIII. It included government officials serving in the District of Columbia, state judges and legislators, and individuals who had previously served in positions with floor privileges.

---

<sup>11</sup> Journal of the Senate, 5th Cong., 2nd sess. (April 27, 1798), p. 481.

<sup>12</sup> U.S. Congress, Senate, History of the Committee on Rules and Administration, prepared by Floyd M. Riddick, 96th Cong., 1st sess., S.Doc. 96-27 (GPO, 1980), pp. 7, 21.

<sup>13</sup> Journal of the Senate, 16th Cong., 1st sess. (January 3, 1820), p. 67.

<sup>14</sup> Journal of the Senate, 24th Cong., 1st sess. (December 7, 1835), p. 5.

The resolution also provided regulations relating to chamber access. No person—excepting Senators, Senate officers, and House Members—would be allowed entrance to the chamber via its side doors, and “no person except members of the Senate” would be “allowed within the bar of the Senate, or to occupy the seat of any senator.” Prior to entry, all persons “claiming admission on the floor of the Senate” were to “enter their names, together with the official position in right of which they claim admission, in a book to be provided and kept at the main entrance to the Senate chamber.”<sup>15</sup> This policy, requiring a record of individuals accessing the floor while the Senate is in session, remains in effect today.<sup>16</sup>

Notwithstanding the policy established in 1854, Senators could, by resolution, obtain temporary floor access for individuals not otherwise permitted. For instance, in 1855, the Senate considered by unanimous consent and agreed to the following resolution: “Resolved, That the officers and soldiers of the war of eighteen hundred and twelve, now holding a convention in this city, be invited to occupy seats upon the floor of the Senate, without the bar, during the sitting of such convention.”<sup>17</sup>

As the Senate prepared to move into its new (and current) chamber in the Capitol’s north extension, it agreed to a resolution that temporarily restricted access to the Senate floor. The resolution of December 23, 1858, stated that “until the Senate otherwise order [sic], no person except senators, the officers of the Senate, and members of the House of Representatives, be admitted to the floor of the Senate while in session.”<sup>18</sup>

Following the Senate’s transition to the new chamber in January 1859, the Senate amended Rule 48 to state, “No person shall be admitted to the floor of the Senate, while in session, except as follows, viz: The officers of the Senate, members of the House of Representatives and their Clerk, the President of the United States and his private secretary, the heads of departments, foreign ministers, ex-Presidents and ex-Vice-Presidents of the United States, ex-senators, senators elect, and judges of the Supreme Court.”<sup>19</sup> However, the Senate could, by motions and resolutions, grant temporary access to individuals for particular reasons. For instance, to address structural problems associated with the new chamber, the Senate agreed to a motion submitted on December 14, 1859: “Ordered, That the assistant engineer in charge of heating and ventilating have the privilege of the floor of the Senate, so far as in the opinion of the presiding officer his duties make it necessary.”<sup>20</sup>

In 1862, the Senate amended Rule 48 to add “governors of States and Territories.”<sup>21</sup> In the next general revision of the Senate rules, agreed to on March 25, 1868, the Senate re-numbered the floor privilege rule as Rule 47 and approved a minor amendment: The phrase foreign ministers became “ministers of the United States and foreign ministers.”<sup>22</sup>

---

<sup>15</sup> Journal of the Senate, 33rd Cong., 1st sess. (January 23, 1854), pp. 122-123.

<sup>16</sup> The daily roster was originally noted in a bound book. It is now logged in an electronic database. See the “Obtaining Staff Floor Privileges” section of this report.

<sup>17</sup> Journal of the Senate, 33rd Cong., 2nd sess. (January 9, 1855), p. 99.

<sup>18</sup> Journal of the Senate, 35th Cong., 2nd sess. (December 23, 1858), pp. 92-93.

<sup>19</sup> Journal of the Senate, 35th Cong., 2nd sess. (January 10, 1859), p. 123.

<sup>20</sup> Journal of the Senate, 36th Cong., 1st sess. (December 14, 1859), pp. 10-11.

<sup>21</sup> Journal of the Senate, 37th Cong., 2nd sess. (February 7, 1862), p. 183.

<sup>22</sup> History of the Committee on Rules and Administration, p. 27.

President Johnson Impeachment Trial (1868)

The Senate adopted its 1868 rules shortly after the House approved articles of impeachment against President Andrew Johnson on March 2 and 3. Following the commencement of the Senate trial on March 5, the Senate voted to restrict, during the impeachment proceedings, “that portion of the Capitol set apart for the use of the Senate and its officers” to those “who now have the privilege of the floor, and clerks of the standing committees of the Senate” and gallery spectators in possession of tickets issued by the Sergeant at Arms.<sup>23</sup>

Three weeks into the impeachment trial, the Senate rejected a resolution providing an exception to the floor privilege rule. By a vote of 19 yeas to 20 nays, the Senate refused “to admit the agent of the Associated Press on the floor of the Senate during the trial of the impeachment.”<sup>24</sup>

First Regular Senate Staff Members Given Floor Privileges Under Standing Rules (1872)

In 1872, the Senate included regular Senate employees, in addition to Senate officers, to the list of positional categories afforded floor privileges under a standing rule.<sup>25</sup> On motion, the Senate amended Rule 47 to add the following: “General of the Army, Admiral of the Navy, members of the national legislatures of foreign countries, private secretaries of Senators duly appointed in writing, and the Librarian of Congress.”<sup>26</sup> By including the phrase duly appointed in writing, the Senate ensured that employee admission would be limited to officially recognized staff members.

The Senate codified the “private secretaries” position in the next general revision of Senate rules in 1877. Re-numbered Rule 60, the floor privileges rule stated:

No person shall be admitted to the floor of the Senate while in session, except as follows:

The officers of the Senate.

Members of the House of Representatives and their Clerk.

The President of the United States and his Private Secretary.

The heads of Departments.

Ministers of the United States.

Foreign ministers.

Ex-Presidents and Ex-Vice Presidents of the United States.

Ex-Senators and Senators-elect.

Judges of the Supreme Court.

Governors of States and Territories.

General of the Army.

---

<sup>23</sup> Journal of the Senate, 40th Cong., 2nd sess. (March 10, 1868), p. 288.

<sup>24</sup> Journal of the Senate, 40th Cong., 2nd sess. (April 3, 1868), p. 365.

<sup>25</sup> The 1872 motion is the first identified occasion on which Senate rules were amended to include non-officer Senate employees as a permanent category for admission to the Senate. However, there was at least one previous, unsuccessful attempt to add a category of Senate employees. Shortly after the new Senate chamber opened in 1859, the Senate voted to strike “clerks of the committees of the Senate for the particular occasion, upon a special order signed by the chairman of the committee” from the resolution amending the floor privilege rule; Journal of the Senate, 35th Cong., 2nd sess. (January 10, 1859), p. 120.

<sup>26</sup> Journal of the Senate, 42nd Cong., 2nd sess. (March 5, 1872), p. 327.

Admiral of the Navy.

Members of national legislatures of foreign countries.

Private secretaries of Senators, duly appointed in writing, and the Librarian of Congress.<sup>27</sup>

George Bancroft: Only Individual Identified by Name Afforded Floor Privileges Under the Standing Rules (1879-1891)

In 1879, for the first (and only) identified time, the Senate amended its standing rules to grant permanent floor privileges to a named individual: George Bancroft, the former Secretary of the Navy, renowned historian, and author of the acclaimed multi-volume History of the United States. The Senate resolved “that the Hon. George Bancroft be admitted to the privileges of the floor of the Senate.”<sup>28</sup> (Following Bancroft’s death in 1891, newspapers reported that this privilege had been extended as a means to honor this “most illustrious man of letters.”<sup>29</sup>)

In 1884, the next general revision of Senate rules re-codified the rules using Roman numerals and titles to distinguish each rule. The re-numbered Rule XXXIII, Privilege of the Floor, specified the Honorable George Bancroft as an individual allowed admittance; retained the positional categories listed in the 1877 rule; and added the House Sergeant at Arms, the Assistant Librarian in charge of the Law Library, judges of the Court of Claims, and the Architect of the Capitol extension. It also contained a second clause that further regulated the admittance of non-officer Senate employees:

No person shall be admitted to the floor as private secretary of a Senator until the Senator appointing him shall certify in writing to the Sergeant-at-Arms that he is actually employed for the performance of the duties of such secretary and is engaged in the performance of the same.<sup>30</sup>

Shortly after the 1884 revision, the Senate agreed to resolutions adding the Secretary of the Smithsonian, the commissioner of Agriculture, and the commissioners of the District of Columbia and changing the Architect of the Capitol extensions to the Architect of the Capitol.<sup>31</sup> In 1888, the Senate added ex-Speakers of the House, and in 1889, it added the President-elect and Vice President-elect.<sup>32</sup>

The floor privilege rule was further amended in 1891 following the death of Bancroft, as well as the deaths of the general of the Army and the admiral of the Navy. The amendment struck the Bancroft reference and broadened the Army and Navy categories to the “General Commanding the Army” and the “senior admiral of the Navy on the active list.” It also incorporated the former paragraph 2, regulating the admission of Senate employees, into paragraph 1. The revised Senate-employee provision stated, “Clerks to Senate committees and clerks to Senators when in the actual discharge of their official duties. Clerks to Senators to be admitted to the floor must be regularly appointed and borne upon the rolls of the Secretary of the Senate as such.” According to

<sup>27</sup> History of the Committee on Rules and Administration, p. 38.

<sup>28</sup> Journal of the Senate, 45th Cong., 3rd sess. (January 16, 1879), p. 123.

<sup>29</sup> “America’s Dead Historian,” Indianapolis Journal (January 20, 1891), p. 5.

<sup>30</sup> History of the Committee on Rules and Administration, p. 52.

<sup>31</sup> The positional category “Commissioners of the District of Columbia” was changed, by resolution, to “Commissioner of the District of Columbia” in 1967; Journal of the Senate, 48th Cong., 1st sess. (April 22, 1884), p. 565; 48th Cong., 1st sess. (June 13, 1884), p. 762; 90th Cong., 1st sess. (November 30, 1967), p. 896.

<sup>32</sup> Journal of the Senate, 50th Cong., 1st sess. (July 25, 1888), p. 1173; 50th Cong., 2nd sess. (January 4, 1889), p. 113.

the Senator offering the amendment, the change regarding Senate clerks defined “a little more clearly who shall be entitled to admission as such.”<sup>33</sup>

After 1891, there were a few additions to the positions given floor privileges: ex-Secretaries of the Senate (1895), House Members-elect (1895), ex-Sergeants at Arms of the Senate (1896), Chaplain of the House (1971), and Parliamentary Emeritus of the Senate (1975).<sup>34</sup> The rules recodification of 1979 provided floor privileges to offices created in 1947 (the Joint Chiefs of Staff), 1975 (mayor of the District of Columbia), and 1979 (members of the European Parliament).

First Female Staff Member Granted Floor Privileges (1946)

The 1891 amendment to Senate rules replaced the term secretary with clerk in reference to Senate staff working for individual Senators or Senate committees. It also removed the gendered pronoun him from the provision regulating who may obtain floor access. Thus, there were no restrictions under Senate rules that prevented female staff members from entering the Senate chamber while the Senate was in session. However, as noted by the author Lewis Gould, until 1946, “informal tradition dictated that only male secretaries could come to the Senate floor to consult with their bosses,” even though the Senate employed about two dozen women clerks at the end of World War II, and five women had previously served as Senators.<sup>35</sup>

The first female staff member reportedly granted floor privileges, Frances Dustin, had served as a secretary to Senator Ralph Owen Brewster for 20 years prior to her admission to the floor, which, not coincidentally, occurred three days after the Senate failed to achieve the two-thirds vote necessary to approve an Equal Rights Amendment (S.J.Res. 61, 79th Congress). Initially, Senator Brewster considered submitting a resolution providing women staffers with floor access. Once he learned that the rules did not prevent female clerks on the Senate floor, however, he instead sought a clarification from the presiding officer.<sup>36</sup> Addressing the chair, he said, “Apropos of our extended discussion last week regarding equal rights ... I should like to have a ruling ... as to whether, under the rules, female clerks may be allowed the privileges of the floor.” The Senator serving as President pro tempore read the floor privilege rule out loud, then stated, “The Chair believes, and the Parliamentarian concurs in the opinion, that a woman clerk to any Senator or to any committee has the same rights as a man clerk, as if she were a man clerk. Therefore, under that ruling, the Chair holds that they are entitled to the floor.”<sup>37</sup>

According to Newsweek, the ruling provided the “cue” for Dustin’s “historic entrance” into the chamber. Dustin, “very gratified,” conferred with Senator Brewster for about 10 minutes, then exited the floor, vowing that women would not “abuse the privilege.”<sup>38</sup> The President pro tempore later confirmed that this was “the first time in 160 years that a woman has had the privilege of the floor of the Senate as clerk to a Senator.”<sup>39</sup>

<sup>33</sup> Congressional Record, vol. 23, 52nd Cong., 1st sess. (December 14, 1891), p. 45.

<sup>34</sup> Journal of the Senate, 53rd Cong., 3rd sess. (January 28, 1895), p. 75 (ex-Secretaries of the Senate); Senate Manual, 54th Cong., 1st sess. (1896), p. 29 (ex-Sergeant at Arms.); Journal of the Senate, 53rd Cong., 3rd sess. (January 26, 1895), p. 72 (House Members-elect); Journal of the Senate, 92nd Cong., 1st sess. (October 4, 1971), p. 705 (Chaplain of the House); Journal of the Senate, 94th Cong., 1st sess. (July 10, 1975), p. 712 (Parliamentarian Emeritus).

<sup>35</sup> Lewis L. Gould, The Most Exclusive Club: A History of the Modern United States Senate (Basic Books, 2005), p. 180.

<sup>36</sup> “Ladies Invited,” Newsweek (August 5, 1946), p. 22.

<sup>37</sup> Congressional Record, vol. 92, 79th Cong., 2nd sess. (July 22, 1946), p. 9616.

<sup>38</sup> “Ladies Invited,” p. 22.

<sup>39</sup> Congressional Record, vol. 92, 79th Cong., 2nd sess. (July 22, 1946), p. 9616.

1978-Present

Recurring Unanimous Consent Agreement: Two Staff Members per Senator on Floor at One Time with Pre-Notification of Journal Clerk (1978)

Until 1978, Senators generally enabled eligible staff members to access the floor via unanimous consent (UC) requests. According to then Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, under this practice, Senators would “have to stand up on the floor, get the attention of the Chair, and obtain unanimous consent all the time.” In order to “do away with all the jumping up and down” of Senators seeking recognition, the majority leader supported a procedure, proposed by Senator Warren Magnuson, that would allow Senators to pre-notify the Journal clerk regarding staff admissions.<sup>40</sup>

On September 30, Majority Leader Byrd requested “unanimous consent that for the remainder of this session, Senators may enter at the desk with the Journal clerk, the names of whatever people they wish to have on the floor, indicating the legislative subject matter which they want to have attended on the floor by their people, and the date and time; and that, subject to conditions in the rear of the chamber, those staff members be allowed on the floor for the specified dates and times and purposes, with the understanding that the Sergeant at Arms be required to implement this order in a reasonable way that will not allow overcrowding in the rear of the chamber. This would mean that the Sergeant at Arms might have to ask some of the staff people to rotate, so that we would not have too many in here.” Senator Ted Stevens indicated his support for the UC agreement provided that Senators “must specify the bill and the date on which the staff member would be admitted in this fashion” and that no Senator “would be permitted to have more than two staff members on the floor at any one time.” Majority Leader Byrd accepted the modification and received unanimous consent to put the procedure into practice.<sup>41</sup>

The following January, the majority leader established, by unanimous consent, a Senate policy providing “for the duration of the 96th Congress, Senators be allowed to leave at the desk with the Journal clerk a list of no more than two staff members who will be granted the privilege of the floor during the consideration of specific matter noted on the list, and that the Sergeant at Arms be instructed to rotate such staff members as space allows.” At the start of subsequent Congresses, the majority leader has made nearly identical UC requests, re-establishing the pre-notification procedure while not codifying it in the Senate’s standing rules. The former Senate Parliamentarian, Floyd Riddick, however, noted in Riddick’s Senate Procedure: Precedents and Practices that Senators continue to use UC requests to obtain floor privileges for individuals otherwise not eligible or to enable more than two staff members to access the floor at one time.<sup>42</sup>

Rules Revisions of 1979 and 1980

In 1979, the Senate agreed to S.Res. 274 (96th Congress) “to revise and modernize the Standing Rules of the Senate.” The Privilege of the Floor rule, then still Rule XXXIII, remained the same with the exception of two additional position categories: the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the mayor of the District of Columbia (replacing the DC commissioner category, established in 1884). The following year, S.Res. 389 recodified and consolidated Senate rules, leading to a general renumbering, as well as minor revisions. The Privilege of the Floor rule became Rule XXIII and now included the position members of the European Parliament in the “Members of National Legislatures of foreign countries” provision. Thus, 1980 marked the last year a new position category was added to the Privilege of the Floor rule.

<sup>40</sup> Congressional Record, vol. 124, 95th Cong., 2nd sess. (September 30, 1978), pp. 32820-32821.

<sup>41</sup> Congressional Record (September 30, 1978), pp. 32820-32821.

<sup>42</sup> For examples of UC requests that allowed individuals not listed in the rule, or as an exception to the two-staff member limit, see Riddick’s Senate Procedure, pp. 847-848.

Standing Order: Disability Accommodations for Staff (1997)

In 1997, the Senate agreed to a standing order that allows individuals with disabilities using guide dogs, wheelchairs, or other accommodations to access the Senate floor. Earlier that year, Senator Ron Wyden had requested unanimous consent to enable a legislative fellow, accompanied by a service dog, onto the floor. The UC request was objected to on the Senate floor.<sup>43</sup> The following day, Majority Leader Trent Lott proposed a policy, by UC, that did receive Senate approval: “Ordered, That an individual with a disability who has, or is granted, the privilege of the Senate floor may bring those supporting services (including service dogs, wheelchairs, and interpreters) on the Senate floor which the Sergeant at Arms determines are necessary and appropriate to assist the disabled individual in discharging the official duties of his or her position until the Rules and Administration Committee has the opportunity to consider properly the matter.”<sup>44</sup> The Senate then agreed to Senator Wyden’s second UC request to allow his energy-policy fellow and her guide dog into the chamber.<sup>45</sup>

Senator Wyden subsequently sponsored S.Res. 110 (105th Congress) “to permit an individual with a disability with access to the Senate floor to bring necessary supporting aids and services.” The resolution, based on the majority leader’s UC agreement, resolved:

That an individual with a disability who has or is granted the privilege of the Senate floor under rule XXIII of the Standing Rules of the Senate may bring necessary supporting aids and services (including service dogs, wheelchairs, and interpreters) on the Senate floor, unless the Senate Sergeant at Arms determines that the use of such supporting aids and services would place a significant difficulty or expense on the operations of the Senate in accordance with paragraph 2 of rule 4 of the Rules for Regulation of the Senate Wing of the United States Capitol.<sup>46</sup>

In debate, Senator Wyden clarified that the resolution’s “undue burden language is intended to apply only in very unusual circumstances, such as where significant architectural modifications might be necessary.” The resolution had several additional proponents, including the chair of the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, John Warner, who stated, “By adopting this resolution, the Senate hopes to be a model for the country in its treatment of individuals with disabilities.”<sup>47</sup> The staff disability accommodation policy continues to apply as one of the Senate’s non-statutory standing orders, which operate as standing rules of the Senate.<sup>48</sup>

Also in 1997, the Senate agreed to another resolution relating to disability that applied only in that Congress. This resolution concerned a Senator, a wounded veteran, who needed assistance traveling to and from his seat in the Senate chamber. S.Res. 8 resolved:

---

<sup>43</sup> Journal of the Senate, 105th Cong., 1st sess. (April 14, 1997), p. 203; H. Josef Hebert, “Senate Defuses Byrd-Dog Dispute,” AP News (April 15, 1997).

<sup>44</sup> Journal of the Senate, 105th Cong., 1st sess. (April 15, 1997), p. 205.

<sup>45</sup> Congressional Record, vol. 143 (April 15, 1997), pp. 5398-5399.

<sup>46</sup> Senate Manual, 118th Cong., 2nd sess., §65, pp. 102-103.

<sup>47</sup> Congressional Record, vol. 143 (July 31, 1997), pp. 17204-17205.

<sup>48</sup> Senate Manual, 118th Cong., 2nd sess., §65, pp. 102-103.

That an employee in the office of Senator Max Cleland, to be designated from time to time by Senator Cleland, shall have the privilege of the Senate floor during any period when Senator Cleland is in the Senate chamber during the 105th Congress.

President Clinton Impeachment Trial (1999)

On January 6, 1999, the day before the Senate commenced the impeachment trial of President Clinton, Majority Leader Lott requested unanimous consent to implement policies regarding “Senate access during impeachment proceedings.” The UC agreement required that individuals eligible for floor access under Rule XXIII enter the chamber through the Republican and Democratic cloakrooms only and that “such access will be limited to the number of vacant seats available on the Senate floor based on protocol considerations enforced by the Secretaries for the Majority and Minority and the Sergeant at Arms.”<sup>49</sup>

Access to the floor would be limited “to those having official impeachment proceedings duties” using the following “guidelines”:

- not more than three assistants to the majority leader;
- not more than three assistants to the minority leader;
- not more than two assistants to the majority whip;
- not more than two assistants to the minority whip;
- Secretary of the Senate (or designee);
- Sergeant at Arms (or designee);
- Secretary for the Majority (or designee);
- Secretary for the Minority (or designee);
- the Senate Legal Counsel, Deputy Legal Counsel, and Counsel for the Secretary and Sergeant at Arms, as needed;
- cloakroom staff, as needed, under supervision of the appropriate party secretary;
- the Secretary of the Senate’s legislative staff, as needed, under supervision of the Secretary; and
- doorkeepers, as needed, under the supervision of the Sergeant at Arms.

The UC agreement stipulated that “committee and Member staff will not be permitted on the Senate floor other than as noted above; and that, accordingly, all messages to Members will be processed in the regular manner through the party cloakrooms or the reception room message desk.” Further, “the Sergeant at Arms shall enforce the above provisions and take such other actions as necessary to fulfill his responsibilities.”

In addition to the Rule XXIII position categories, the UC agreement also ordered that “the following shall be admitted to the floor of the Senate while the Senate is sitting for impeachment proceedings”:

- not more than two assistants to the Chief Justice;
- assistants to the House managers; and
- counsel and assistants to counsel for the President of the United States.<sup>50</sup>

---

<sup>49</sup> Journal of the Senate, 106th Cong., 1st sess. (January 6, 1999), pp. 6-7.

<sup>50</sup> Journal of the Senate, 106th Cong., 1st sess. (January 6, 1999), pp. 6-7; U.S. Congress, Senate, Impeachment Trial of (continued...)

Exclusion of Lobbyists (2007)

In 2007, Congress enacted the Honest Leadership and Open Government Act (P.L. 110-81).<sup>51</sup> Among its provisions, the act eliminated Senate “floor privileges for former Members, Senate officers, and Speakers of the House who are registered lobbyists or seek financial gain.” As amended by P.L. 110-81, Rule XXIII now contains two clauses following the list of positional categories. Paragraph 2(a) excludes lobbyists from the chamber with exceptions allowed, during certain events, as outlined by paragraph 2(b). (Paragraph 3 concerns access to other Senate privileges, including athletic and parking facilities.) Paragraph 2 states:

(a) The floor privilege provided in paragraph 1 shall not apply, when the Senate is in session, to an individual covered by this paragraph who is—

(1) a registered lobbyist or agent of a foreign principal;

or

(2) in the employ of or represents any party or organization for the purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, the passage, defeat, or amendment of any Federal legislative proposal.

(b) The Committee on Rules and Administration may promulgate regulations to allow individuals covered by this paragraph floor privileges for ceremonial functions and events designated by the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader.

Infants on Floor During Votes (2018)

In 2018, the Senate agreed to S.Res. 463 (115th Congress), “authorizing a Senator to bring a young son or daughter of the Senator onto the floor of the Senate during votes.” The resolution created a new Senate standing order:

Notwithstanding rule XXIII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, a Senator who has a son or daughter (as defined in section 101 of the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 (29 U.S.C. 2611)) under 1 year of age may bring the son or daughter onto the floor of the Senate during votes.

The resolution addressed a concern conveyed by a Senator anticipating the birth of her baby daughter. Senate Rule XXIII does not grant children access to the floor while the Senate is in session, and it is not in order, as noted in Senate precedents, for the Senate to record the votes of Members who are not present.<sup>52</sup> Thus, Senators might be prevented from voting if they also need to care for their infant children. Under the new policy, on April 19, 2018, the day after the Senate agreed to S.Res. 463, Senator Tammy Duckworth voted in the chamber while accompanied by her newborn daughter.<sup>53</sup>

First President Trump Impeachment Trial (2020)

On January 15, 2020, one day prior to the start of the first impeachment trial of President Donald Trump, the Senate agreed to a unanimous consent request by Majority Leader Mitch McConnell that included “allocations and provisions” regarding “access to the Senate wing, the Senate floor,

---

President William Jefferson Clinton, Volume 1: Preliminary Proceedings, prepared by Office of the Secretary of the Senate, 106th Cong., 1st sess., 1999, S.Doc. 106-4 (Washington: GPO, 1999).

<sup>51</sup> “Lobbying Overhaul Bill Takes Aim at ‘Culture of Corruption,’” CQ Almanac 2007, 63rd ed., edited by Jan Austin (Washington, DC: Congressional Quarterly, 2008).

<sup>52</sup> Riddick’s Senate Procedure, p. 1399.

<sup>53</sup> Sheryl Gay Stolberg, “‘It’s About Time’: A Baby Comes to the Senate Floor,” New York Times, April 19, 2018.

and the Senate Chamber Galleries during all of the proceedings involving the exhibition of consideration of the Articles of Impeachment” against the President. The UC agreement’s section on Senate floor access contained three paragraphs. Paragraph (1) provided general policies related to entrance to the chamber and floor seating, and paragraphs (2) and (3) regulated floor access for specified trial assistants.

Paragraph (1) In General

Individuals with floor privileges under Rule XXIII as limited in paragraph (2) or with privileges under paragraph (3):

- shall access the chamber of the Senate through the cloakrooms only or as directed by the Sergeant at Arms and the Doorkeeper of the Senate,
- shall remain seated at all times, and
- have access limited to the number of vacant seats available on the floor based on protocol considerations enforced by the Secretaries for the Majority and the Minority and the Sergeant at Arms and the Doorkeeper.

Paragraph (2) Limited Staff Access

Officers and employees of the Senate do not have Rule XXIII floor privileges, except as specified to perform official impeachment proceedings:

- party leadership staff limited to:
  - not more than four assistants to the majority leader,
  - not more than four assistants to the minority leader;
- Offices of the Secretary and Sergeant at Arms:
  - the Secretary of the Senate and Assistant Secretary,
  - legislative staff for the Secretary, as needed under the Secretary’s supervision,
  - the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper, the Deputy Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper,
  - additional doorkeepers as needed under the supervision of the Sergeant at Arms;
- party secretaries and support staff:
  - the Secretaries for the Majority and Minority,
  - the Assistant Secretaries for the Majority and Minority,
  - cloakroom employees as needed under the supervision of the appropriate party secretary;
- advisory and legal staff:
  - the Parliamentarian and, as needed, assistants to the Parliamentarian,
  - the Senate Legal Counsel and Deputy Senate Legal Counsel, as needed,
- counsel for the Secretary of the Senate, the Sergeant at Arms, and the Doorkeeper, as needed; and
- Senate pages, limited to the minimum number required to perform their duties, as determined by the Majority and Minority Secretaries.

Paragraph (3) Other Individuals with Senate Floor Access

- Not more than three assistants to the Chief Justice of the United States,
- assistants to the House impeachment managers, and
- counsel and assistants to counsel for the President of the United States.<sup>54</sup>

Second President Trump Impeachment Trial (2021)

The second Trump impeachment trial took place February 9-12, 2021. For the duration of the trial, the Senate operated under temporary floor-access rules established by Section 1 of S.Res. 38 (117th Congress). The resolution established the same access and limitations as the UC agreement that was agreed to on January 15, 2020, for the first Trump impeachment trial with the following differences:

- The resolution enabled individuals designated by the Secretary for the Majority or the Secretary for the Minority to access the floor in place of the respective Secretary.
- The phrase the minimum number of Senate pages necessary was changed to the minimum number of chamber assistants.

Obtaining Staff Floor Privileges

The Sergeant at Arms enforces the rules and regulations governing the Senate chamber. Accordingly, the Office of the Sergeant at Arms (SAA), including the Doorkeeper, supervises and restricts staff access to the floor. The SAA ensures that non-chamber staff members will not access the floor during a Senate session unless they are on the Journal clerk's pre-notification list or are allowed under the terms of a UC order. The SAA also ensures that, barring a UC request to the contrary, no more than two staff members from the same Senator's office will be on the floor at the same time, as mandated in the standing order agreed to at the start of each Congress.<sup>55</sup>

Access Under the Pre-Notification Floor Pass Procedure

In accordance with Senate Rule XXIII, regular full-time Senate staff may be granted access to the Senate floor while the Senate is in session. Before entering the Senate chamber, authorized staff must obtain floor passes from the credentials desk located on the Senate side of the Capitol. Information on floor privileges and the process for obtaining passes is posted on Webster, the Senate's internal website.<sup>56</sup>

Pre-Notification via the ServiceNow Portal of the Senate Sergeant at Arms

Senate office managers and other staff (Senate Office Managing Users) use the SAA ServiceNow web portal to grant, revoke, and reinstate floor privileges for specified staff members who are eligible for floor access pursuant to paragraph 1 of Rule XXIII.<sup>57</sup> That is, they must be Senate

<sup>54</sup> Congressional Record, daily edition, 116th Cong., 2nd sess. (January 15, 2020), p. S235.

<sup>55</sup> Congressional Record, daily edition, 119th Cong., 1st sess. (January 3, 2025), p. S9.

<sup>56</sup> Access to Webster is restricted to authorized Senate users.

<sup>57</sup> Senate Office Managing Users may also use the ServiceNow portal to request floor access for ineligible staff members through an exception process. Senate Sergeant at Arms, "ServiceNow End User Guide: Floor Privileges—Office Guide, April 2025, available from Webster.

committee staff members or working in the office of a Senator and on the payroll of the Senate or joint committee staff members and on the payroll of the Senate or the House of Representatives.<sup>58</sup> Should the Senate or joint committee office experience any personnel changes affecting its list of eligible individuals, the credentialed staff member should submit those changes to the SAA via ServiceNow.

While Senate offices may pre-submit the names of multiple staff members, the number of staff members from the same office allowed on the floor at one time is limited. The SAA restricts access to those individuals who are in temporary possession of floor passes provided by the credentials desk.

Floor Pass Allotment

Every committee of the Senate, as well as joint committees, are allotted four cards (floor passes) for majority staff and four cards for minority staff to be used when the committee has jurisdiction over pending legislation. Each Senator is allotted two cards for regular full-time Senate staff members who work in the Senator's office and are performing official duties in the chamber relating to a particular bill or matter under consideration. One card is not time limited, while the other card has a 15-minute limit to allow staff members to speak briefly to a Senator or transport materials to the floor.

Obtaining Floor Passes

During a Senate session and 30 minutes prior, an eligible staff member may sign in and obtain a pass at the credentials desk, located between the Senate Reception Room and the Senate chamber. The desk attendant checks the staff member's official Senate ID badge and verifies that the staff member's name has been pre-submitted via the ServiceNow portal. (Unlisted staff members are advised to contact their offices and request to be added to the database.) The desk attendant also notes in the daily roster—now an electronic database—the staff member's name, office, and official business to be performed and the card number issued to the employee.<sup>59</sup>

Following the sign-in procedures, staff members granted floor access are to display both their Senate ID badges and the floor passes to the doorkeeper at the entrance of the chamber. When their duties are completed, they are to exit the chamber and return the floor passes to the attendant at the credentials desk or to a doorkeeper.

Limitations on Use of Floor Passes

If a Senator's office allotment has been met, any additional employees seeking floor access are to wait in the Senate lobby until one of the office employees returns from the floor. According to the Senate Doorkeeper's "Floor Privileges" fact sheet, the Sergeant at Arms may also "rotate staff on and off the floor to eliminate congestion."<sup>60</sup> Additionally, the SAA may restrict access due to restrictions imposed under the terms of a UC agreement or a Senate resolution. (See, for example, the Clinton impeachment UC agreement.) Staff members who wish to observe, but not assist in, Senate proceedings are advised to do so from the Senate galleries.

---

<sup>58</sup> The ServiceNow portal is also used to provide floor access to staff assisting the Vice President in the Senate chamber.

<sup>59</sup> The desk attendant (also known as the Credentialing Specialist) is an employee in the SAA. The attendant is stationed at the desk from 30 minutes prior to 30 minutes after a Senate session.

<sup>60</sup> The Senate Doorkeeper's "Floor Privileges" information sheet is available to Senate staff on Webster, the Senate's internal website (accessed on September 2, 2025).

Staff members are admitted to the chamber “only for the discharge of their official duties.” Staff with passes may access the chamber from the Senate lobby or the Democratic or Republican cloakrooms. At the start of roll-call votes, the Sergeant at Arms closes the floor for entry, except for those staff members granted access via unanimous consent or committee staff members associated with the issue involved. During the time spent on the floor, staff must be seated and not sit in a Senator’s chair or use cell phones or other electronic devices.

Access by Unanimous Consent

Reasons for UC Requests

In addition to the pre-notification procedures outlined above, Senators may use UC requests to provide access to staff members. UC requests may be used when an eligible staff member is needed on the floor but is not currently in the ServiceNow database. Additionally, Senators may seek UC approval to enable floor access for more than two staff members at one time or to provide access to an assistant who is not on the Senate payroll, such as a legislative fellow or intern. Senators may also obtain UC agreements to provide temporary floor privileges to other individuals.

Language Used in UC Requests

Floor-privilege UC agreements usually include a time limitation, such as for the duration of the day, session, or Congress. If the Senator is requesting the assistance of more than two staff members, the UC request will likely include the reason why the maximum number should be temporarily increased.

The following are examples of UC request language that might be used to enable individuals to access the floor aside from the pre-notification floor pass procedure.

Allowing Assistants Not on the Senate Payroll

Senator: Mr. [or Madam] President, I ask unanimous consent that my defense fellow, [named individual], be given floor privileges for the remainder of the first session of the 116th Congress.

Allowing More Than Two Staff Members on the Floor at One Time

Senator: Mr. [or Madam] President, as manager of the pending bill, I require the assistance of more than two staff members on the floor today. I ask unanimous consent that the following staff members, [named individuals], be afforded the privilege of the floor during debate and all votes on the [named bill].

Author Information

Jane A. Hudiburg
Analyst on Congress and the Legislative Process

---

Disclaimer

This document was prepared by the Congressional Research Service (CRS). CRS serves as nonpartisan shared staff to congressional committees and Members of Congress. It operates solely at the behest of and under the direction of Congress. Information in a CRS Report should not be relied upon for purposes other than public understanding of information that has been provided by CRS to Members of Congress in connection with CRS's institutional role. CRS Reports, as a work of the United States Government, are not subject to copyright protection in the United States. Any CRS Report may be reproduced and distributed in its entirety without permission from CRS. However, as a CRS Report may include copyrighted images or material from a third party, you may need to obtain the permission of the copyright holder if you wish to copy or otherwise use copyrighted material.